HEAVY VOTE COMES THROUGHOUT NATION

Chairman M'Combs Claims Victory for Wilson With Michigan Only Central State in Doubt.

DIXON INSISTS ROOSEVELT WILL WIN

The three-cornered presidential contest sent to the polls today voters who took an unprecedented interest in the outcome of a campaign that had been waged with unusual bitterness. Midday reports from every quarter indicated a nation-wide record-breaking vote.

In addition to the election of president, vice president and members of congress, thirty-three states are voting for governors and thirty-six states for legislatures which will fill vacancies in the United States senate. All states, with the exception of Washington, Oregon and Minnesota, where there were rains, were favored with Indian summer weather and this served to bring out a heavy vote.

New York and Massachusetts created new records for early voting and the political leaders at the national presidential headquarters in New York announced this afternoon that their advices was that an enormous vote was being polled in every part of the United States, especially in the middle west.

President at Cincinnati.

President Taft spent the morning hours at the home of his brother, Charles P. Taft, in Cincinnati., and early in the afternoon prepared to cast his ballot. The president was confident that he would be returned to the white house.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson was the first of the three candidates to cast his vote. Gov. Wilson dropped his ballot in a polling booth in an engine house in Princeton, N. J., and as he emerged from the voting booth smilingly observed that he had "voted the straight democratic ticket." Gov. Wilson will hear the returns at his home in company with his family and a few friends.

Col. Roosevelt devoted the morning to correspondence and then in company with several neighbors, left his home in Oyster Bay, N. Y., and went to the polling place in a fire-truck house, and cast his ballot shortly after 1 o'clock. The progressive party nominee for president will hear the returns at his home on Sagamore Hill.

Gov. Johnson Cannot Vote.

Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, of California, the vice presidential nominee on the progressive party ticket, could not return to California in time to vote, as he filled out Col. Roosevelt's speaking engagements in the east after the colonel had been shot. Gov. Johnson spent the day in New York city and will hear the returns tonight at the progressive party headquarters there.

Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, democratic candidate for vice president, cast his vote shortly after 9 o'clock at his home in Indianapolis. He walked to the polls with a friend.

Sherman's Name on Ticket.

The vacancy on the republican ticket caused by the death of Vice President Sherman was not filled, and Mr. Sherman's name remained on the ballots.

Reports received by the national chairmen of the three parties showed that heavy votes were being cast throughout the country. Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and, in fact, every state in the middle west, cast an early heavy vote with indications that all records would be broken. Splitting of ballots was reported in Michigan, while there were evidences of scratching of tickets at many points in New York state.

Several thousand citizens who voted in the September primaries lost their right to vote in New Jersey by failure to register.

When Results May Be Known.

Estimates differ as to the hour when the results on the presidential contest may be known tonight. Political leaders figuring on landslides say the result will be known by 9 o'clock, while others are inclined to the belief that it will be midnight or later before the successful head of the ticket is known.

VOTE IS TREMENDOUS.

Reports to Headquarters Confirm Newspaper Dispatches.

New York, Nov. 5.—Reports to national political headquarters, coming from the confidential agents of the three principal parties, bore out the press accounts of heavy voting throughout the northern, central and western states.

Chairman McCombs at Wilson headquarters said he saw no reason to change his earlier predictions that Gov. Wilson would be the victor. The only central state conceded to be in doubt was Michigan and National Committeeman Wood said that they had an even chance.

Chairman Hilles was at an uptown hotel where he is acting host of Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft, the wife and daughter of the president. They came to this city to receive the returns.

Chairman Dixon and George W. Perkins arrived early at progressive headquarters. Mr. Dixon still claimed that Col. Roosevelt would be elected and added that he was absolutely satisfied that the progressive candidate would not finish worse than second.

IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Illinois started out this morning to cast a record vote. Clear, warm weather was promised by the official forecast to continue throughout the day. That the state vote will total more than a million is estimated by political managers and that it may reach 1,250,000 many observers do not

Washington Amuses Itself by Casting "Straw" Votes

Washington, Nov. 5.—Residents of the nation's capital have no voting franchise, so while voters the country over are going to the polls for their favorite candidates, Washingtonians are contenting themselves with casting straw votes. Hundreds of polling places throughout the District of Columbia opened at sunrise and will continue to receive ballots until sundown, when an effort will be made to assemble the vote. Men and women are voting.

Chief Moore, of the weather bureau, was happy today when the forecasters from their aeries over the country began to report that his predictions of generally fair weather for election day were being made good.

In the rural districts surrounding Washington, just over the line in Virginia and Maryland, the fair day was bringing out the rural vote early. Hundreds of suburbanites, who have residences in the two states and come to work every day in the district, exercised their franchise bright and early and then came to their offices. It is estimated that fully 1,000 government employes have left the city to go to their homes to vote.

The familiar scenes which attend election day elsewhere, however, are not in evidence here. The city has the appearance of Sunday or a holiday. Quiet prevails everywhere, and government offices, because of the absence of their heads, are merely grinding out routine.

Come and Read the Sentinel Election Bulletins Tonight.

Pictures by Cartoonist Griswold will be interspersed to pleasantly illuminate the text of the bulletins, and everybody is welcome. Join The Sentinel's throng tonight.

On the Anxious Seat

When Nominees on the Various Tickets Voted

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 5.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson voted the straight democratic ticket at -0:51 o'clock in the democratic ticket at 10:51 o'clock in the in the voting booth four minutes and remarked as he came out that the ballot was so big he "had a hard time finding the democratic presidential electors."

Gov. Woodrow Wilson today made no secret of the fact that he intended to vote the straight ticket. On a day in which he is conspicuously before the nation the governor was asked how he felt.

"I feel like a boy out of school," he replied with a sigh of relief, for he admitted that the campaign had been a hard physical strain. His scalp wound, received in the automobile mishap two days ago, did not bother him, he said.

"I haven't had much time to be with my wife and daughters," he added, "or to get much rest."

Most of the day the governor planned to spend in answering letters. Tonight a small party will be at the Wilson home to hear the returns by a private telegraph wire. Besides the governor's immediate family, his brother-in-law, Prof. Stockton Axson; two cousins from Columbia, S. C.; Captain G. H. McMasters, U. S. A., and James Woodrow and Joseph R. Wilson, a younger brother of the nominee, will hear the returns at the Wilson home.

Gov. Wilson had planned to get to bed early, but the students of Princeton university have other ideas on the subject. They intend to have a noisy parade to the governor's house if the trend of election results should point his way.

The governor left his home here about 10:30 o'clock in high spirits. When he arrived at the polling booth he was

MAN COMING HERE KILLED BY TRAIN

Karl Kretz Had Shipped Goods to Fort Wayne Few Days Ago.

TO HAVE LIVED HERE

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Karl Kretz, of Green Isle, N. Y., who, on November 1, shipped his household goods to Fort Wayne, Ind., where he was to reside, fell under a passenger train in the Central yards of this city last mid-night and suffered injuries which resulted in his death. Both legs were cut off close to the trunk and the body was terribly mangled.

Found in the man's pocket was a waybill showing that he had shipped his household goods to Fort Wayne, and it is believed that he was on his way to join his wife there when the accident occurred. The cause of the accident could not be learned. The body is being held at a local morgue.

GAS WIPES OUT FAMILY OF FIVE

Husband, Wife and Three Children Perish in Toledo Home.

FUMES FROM STOVES

Toledo, O., Nov. 5.—A family of five was found dead from gas asphyxiation at their home here today. The dead are: George F. Hassen, 24, an automobile tester; his wife, 22, and their three children, William, 3½; Dorothy, 2, and Mary, 6 months.

The bodies were all in their nightclothes, the man in a kneeling attitude beside the bed. The youngest child was clasped in the mother's arms. The discovery was made when a sister of Hassen called at the house and could not obtain admittance. She called the police, who forced an entrance. The fatal fumes came from two stoves found still burning by the police.

TURN A DEAF EAR TO TURK

AWAITING A MORE DEFINITE REQUEST

Sharp Line of Opinion Divides Powers as to Future of Balkans.

London, Nov. 5.—In the absence of news of fighting from the Balkan theater of war Europe is giving attention to the diplomatic situation arising out of the hostilities. Although all the powers have not yet replied to Turkey's appeal for mediation, it is known that it has nowhere received a very warm reception. A more definite request from Turkey to the powers to put an end to the war, which she is expected to make in view of the French reply to her first application, is likely to receive more consideration.

Even then, however, the powers will be unable to overlook the oft-repeated demand of the allied Balkan nations that Turkey must deal direct with them. All that the powers will be able to do, therefore, is to act as intermediary in bringing the belligerents together.

Sharp Dividing Line.

As to the future of the Balkans, a very sharp line divides Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy from France, Russia and Great Britain. Public opinion in Great Britain, France and Russia argues that the allies should have the territory which they have conquered

JOSEPH HAS LOST HIS NOSE; CANNOT BE FOUND.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 5.—Joseph Jennings' nose was sliced off last night when he quarreled with a stranger in a saloon here. The man grabbed a butcher knife and struck Jennings. The severed nose fell to the floor and after the scuffle could not be found. Jennings was taken to a hospital, where today enough flesh and skin was cut from his forehead to make a new nose. The man who did the cutting escaped.

HAS ENOUGH FOR BOTH, HE SAYS

Proud Father Brings Son to Shake the Hand of Gov. Marshall.

"DE VICE PRESIDENT"

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 5.—"I've got four more like him at home Guv'nr and two of 'em's named after you." A swarthy foreigner smiled as he grasped Gov. Marshall's hand today, after the governor had leaned over the side of the automobile to shake hands with a tiny, dirty-faced street urchin, which the proud father had brought to see "De nex' vice president." It was in the seventh precinct of the twelfth ward and a crowd surged around the auto to shake the candidate's hand.

"You're richer than I am," the governor said to the father. I haven't any."

"That don't matter, Guv'nr; I've got 'nuff for both of us," the man replied.

The governor, accompanied by Thomas F. Colbert, custodian of the state house, left his office at 11:10 o'clock and was driven to half a dozen polling places in the twenfth ward.

ALLEN COUNTY VOTE IMMENSE

Early Rush to the Polls in Both City and Country Precincts.

ELECTION DAY GOES SMOOTHLY

Indications Point to Total of 22,000 in Entire County.

Allen county is today piling up the biggest vote ever cast in its political history. Every precinct in the city reports a heavy and early vote. Political leaders who have battled through many a hard-fought campaign and election declare that the vote of today will be completed unusually early. In fact, some of the precincts report their total vote almost in shortly after the noon hour.

The early voting was due in a great measure to the fact that practically all shops and other industrial institutions of the city allowed their men a half holiday this morning, and most of the voters took advantage of the opportunity and voted early.

Will Reach 22,000 Mark.

It is the belief of political leaders, in all parties, that the total vote in Allen county will reach the 22,000 mark.

As usual, the leaders of the different parties persist in predicting a sweeping victory for their respective tickets, but the fact is no definite statement can be truthfully made until after the polls are closed and the votes counted, notwithstanding the fact that each party has men stationed at the polls to keep the headquarters in touch with the vote every half hour or more.

One precinct reports Roosevelt and the progressive ticket in the lead, basing the report on the number of voters known to openly express their political convictions on the outside of the voting places. The democrats declare that if there is any silent vote it will go ot Wilson, as in at least one precinct it is said that a number of alleged Taft men are urging the voters to support the democratic presidential nominee.

JUST FOR LOVE OF EXCITEMENT

Girl of 19 is Accused of Setting Fire to St. Louis Hotels.

THREE LOST LIFE

St. Louis, Nov. 5.—Miss Barbara Gladys, a 19-year-old nurse girl, was arrested today and charged with having set fire last Friday night to the Berlin hotel in which three persons lost their lives. According to the police she confessed that she started the fire for the "love of excitement."

Her arrest followed the discovery of a fire in the Windemer hotel early today. Her employer, Rev. W. J. Williamson, had moved his family and the girl to the Windemer after the Berlin hotel was destroyed.

The girl said, according to the police, that she fired the Berlin by scattering paper through the halls of the second and third floors and igniting them.

The girl later made a written confession in which she said her name was Barbara Gladys Arnold. She confessed that she started a fire in the Windemer by throwing a lighted towel over the transom of her room. The flame was extinguished by Mrs. Williamson, whose husband later called the police.

How to Burn Coal

THE COAL dealers have their experiences just like other folks. Some of these experiences are almighty serious, of course, and some of them have their funny side.

"Last fall, a year ago," said one of the dealers, "a woman who had purchased some coal from us complained that it didn't seem to burn real well. I went out and found a mistake in judgment as to how to operate the furnace, but our experience had taught me that it would not be best to blame the matter onto the furnace. Nevertheless, when I had readjusted a part of the damper arrangement I knew the thing would work all right, with the coal which we had delivered. But I took another tack.

"'Which end of the coal pile did you begin on?' I asked.

"'Why, we commenced using it here,' replied the customer, indicating the place where the shovel stood.

"'Well,' said I, 'that explains it, then. You should have commenced at the other end and gradually worked toward the coal at this end of the pile as spring approaches.'

"'Oh,' said she, 'I didn't know that—'

"'I'm very sorry—it was an oversight, the driver didn't tell me.'

"Which end did you begin on?"

But you do that and then, if anything goes wrong, just call me up and I'll come right over.'

"I never heard a complaint from that time forward. And the coal was just the same all the way through."

WHERE NOMINEES ON THE VARIOUS TICKETS VOTED

greeted by a group of photographers and spectators. A half dozen photographers had perched their cameras in the interior of the little engine house.

"I'll enforce the law if you like and have these men put out: I'm governor, you know," the nominee said, laughingly, to the tellers.

The governor had to wait a few minutes before one of the three polling booths was vacant.

He thought the ballots were inside.

"You'll have to have one of these first," called a teller as the nominee was handed his ballot.

"Woodrow Wilson, No. 9 Cleveland lane, ballot 112," announced a teller as he recorded the governor's vote. The governor was in the booth just four minutes. As he came out he spoke of his difficulty in finding the democratic presidential electors. "They're buried down at the bottom of the sheet somewhere," he said plaintively.

IN FIRE-TRUCK HOUSE.

Flashlight Picture is Taken as Roosevelt Votes.

Oyster Bay, Nov. 5.—Col. Roosevelt arrived at the polling place in a fire-truck house at 12:05 this afternoon and a few minutes later had cast his ballot. Seven neighbors accompanied him and he waited 20 minutes until each of them had voted before returning to Sagamore Hill. While in the polling place a flashlight was taken as Col. Roosevelt dropped his ballot in the box and the crowd cheered.

The only sign of election day at Sagamore Hill was the presence of a lineman who ran a telegraph wire into a large room on the second floor of Col. Roosevelt's house, to bring in the returns tonight. Col. Roosevelt passed the day as though it were any other. He sent for his secretary and as soon as he had finished breakfast was in his library at work on his correspondence. Then he took a walk.

A crowd of villagers waited for an hour in front of the truck house for Col. Roosevelt, and as his automobile rounded the corner the people set up a cheer. The colonel doffed the brown army hat and waved an acknowledgment.

"Theodore Roosevelt, ballot No. 265," called out the clerk as the colonel entered a booth. He remained there for five minutes, then came out and deposited his ballot in the box. Then he went outside and sat in his automobile. He waited for a quarter of an hour, until others from Sagamore Hill had voted.

"I am having a quiet day," said the colonel. "This afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt and I are going to take a walk."

The colonel said he would go to his editorial office in New York on Thursday or Friday. Joseph French, poll clerk, explained why it was not necessary for Col. Roosevelt to have registered personally in order to be qualified to vote. Although personal registration is required in New York city before an election in the rural districts a voter who cast his vote at the last general election is thereby enrolled and if in the same district at the next general election, may vote without personal registration.

DECLINES USE OF AUTO.

Governor Marshall Walks to Polls to Vote Straight Ticket.

Indianapolis, Nov. 5.—"I suppose you voted the straight ticket, Governor?"

"I sure did," replied Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, democratic candidate for vice president, just after he had cast his ballot at 9:30 this morning in the Third precinct, Eighth ward. The governor was accompanied to the polls by Meredith Nicholson, the author, and a number of neighbors. Mr. Nicholson had his automobile there for the governor to ride to the polls, but the vice presidential candidate said he would rather walk. The governor's party was subjected to a battery of photographers at the voting place, 120 East Fifteenth street.

"I didn't vote for myself. I voted for the democratic presidential electors," said Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, democratic nominee for vice president, after he had pulled the "straight ticket" lever at the polling place at the Fifteenth street engine house this morning. "Besides I believe that if a man believes he is competent enough to place himself before the people as a candidate he ought to show enough self confidence to cast his vote for himself."

Albert J. Beveridge, progressive candidate for governor, voted at 3810 North Illinois street, standing in line 45 minutes before he reached the machine. Approximately 125 men were in line when the candidate appeared. He greeted persons in the long line of waiting voters before he took his place in line and awaited his turn.

Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president, cast his vote for the straight republican ticket at 9 o'clock. Mr. Fairbanks was accompanied to the polls by his son, Richard M.

DEBS HAS A BIRTHDAY.

Voting Is Part of Socialist Nominee's Celebration.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 5.—Eugene V. Debs celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday anniversary today by going to the polls and voting the ticket which he heads as candidate for president. He was born in Terre Haute Nov. 5, 1855, and has lived here all his life.

TAKES FULLY FIVE MINUTES.

President Taft Votes Six Separate Ballots at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Nov. 5.—President Taft took the full alloted five minutes when he voted shortly after noon today. He voted each of the six separate ballots, five of which are devoted to local affairs.

Before visiting the polling booth the president visited with a number of Cincinnati friends, including Congressman Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of Col. Roosevelt. President Taft was cheered by a number as he drove through the streets on his way to vote.

Many men, wearing Taft badges, came to the automobile to shake hands with the candidate. A Taft man, thrusting his face up close to the governor's at the polling place of the sixth precinct, decared:

"I didn't know you was so d—— good looking, governor, till I got up close to you this way."

Many voters in the precinct shook hands with the governor, calling him "Tom." But one man asked him for "the price of two drinks for the crowd." The governor declined to "cough up" with appropriate thanks. The governor will receive returns at his office in the state house tonight, where a private wire has been installed. A group of state officials and their wives will be with him.

In the Country.

While only two or three townships had reported the vote at noon, it is believed that a heavy vote is being cast. At 9 o'clock this morning 80 voters had cast their ballots in precinct A of Wayne township, and it is said that during the first hour following the opening of the polls 78 had voted in precinct A of Adams township.

Some Other Reports.

One of the earliest votes reported came from the Nineteenth precinct of the Seventh ward, where out of 862 registered a total of 501 votes had been cast at noon.

In the Twentieth precinct 371 had voted at noon. There were 703 registrations in this precinct. At noon also, the Twentieth precinct reported a vote of 313 out of a possible 574.

Out of 439 registered in the Thirteenth precinct nearly 300 had voted at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

More than half of the total vote had been cast at noon in the Twelfth precinct. Out of 688 registered, 370 had voted.

In the Eighteenth precinct the vote at noon was 375, which leaves 225 to vote during the afternoon.

The Eleventh precinct at 1 o'clock reported a vote of 205 out of 379 registrations.

Nearly 350 votes had been cast up to 1 o'clock in the Tenth precinct.

The Twenty-seventh precinct at 1:30 o'clock reported that two-thirds of the total vote was in. It was reported unofficially that the progressive, democratic and socialist tickets are running about even in this precinct.

Johnson Feels Confident.

Chairman W. A. Johnson, of the democratic central committee, expressed confidence that Allen county will poll the biggest democratic vote in its history. He declares that the natural prestige of the democratic party, supplemented by the good and efficient work of the county organization, will get out the large and successful vote.

Chairman Preble, of the progressives, and Chairman Loesch, of the republicans, are equally as confident that their tickets will meet the approval of the Allen county voters today. Both parties claim a certain per cent of the democratic vote.

Could Not Vote.

Little trouble is reported at the polls, except in a few instances where men who claimed they had registered were not allowed to vote because their names could not be found on the registration leugers. One man, appearing at progressive headquarters shortly after noon, declared that he had filled out a registration blank at his home, took it to the registration place during the October period, was recognized by the clerks in charge, who said they would enter his name, and then left. Today he went to vote and his name could not be found. The man had no way of proving that he had filed his registration blank, therefore a vote was denied him.

Two men with similar complaints appeared at the democratic headquarters, but were told that if their names did not appear on the registration books, it would be impossible for them to vote. One of these men declared that the election officials in his precinct recognized him as the same man who appeared to register in October, but a careful examination of the books failed to show his name.

To Receive Returns.

The democratic committee has made special preparations to receive election returns this evening at headquarters. Special telephones, both local and long distance, have been installed, together with telegraph instrumentsand adding machines.

The Elks' and Commercial clubs have made arrangements to receive returns, as have a number of other fraternal and social organizations of the city.

More Late Reports.

At 1 o'clock Washington township, precinct A reported a vote of 400 out of 560 registered. At 2 o'clock precinct B in Washington township reported 380 voted.

Out of 502 registered, 359 votes had been polled in the First precinct at 2 o'clock. The Second precinct at the same hour reported a vote of 249 out of 340 registered, and the Third precinct had 335 votes polled at 2:30 o'clock.

In the Twenty-third precinct 338 had voted at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

HAD BROKEN LEG, BUT INSISTED ON VOTING.

Princeton, Ind., Nov. 5.—As George Binpack, jr., age 21, polled as a democrat, drove up to the polls at King's station today to cast his first vote, his horse gave a lunge and kicked into the buggy, breaking Binpack's leg. He persisted in being carried in and voted.

LAST "GRAFT" ECHO HEARD.

San Francisco Prosecution Ends With Release of Louis Glass.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4.—All that was left on the court calendars of the so-called "graft" prosecution in San Francisco, which resulted in the overthrow of the Schmitz administration in 1907, passed into history today when Superior Judge William P. Lawlor dismissed the last of the indictments against Louis Glass, who as vice president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company was accused of having offered a bribe to a supervisor for his vote on a franchise measure. Glass had taken advantage of the statutory provision granting accused men the right of trial within sixty days, asserting that the district attorney had neglected to bring him to trial within that period.

WIFE FALLS OVER BODY.

Searching for Husband, Blind Woman Stumbles Across His Corpse.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—While searching for her husband, Harry Tew, in her home at 2603 North Waterloo street, Mrs. Mary Tew, who is blind, stumbled over his body on the kitchen floor.

She rushed to the front door and screamed until neighbors and passersby were attracted to her aid. The police of the Eighteenth district removed the body to St. Christopher's hospital, where the physicians announced that death had occurred several hours before.

Tew was 42 years of age and physicians say his death was caused by heart disease, of which he suffered several previous attacks.

HAD BIG SUM OF MONEY.

Thomas McConnell, who Died Suddenly Left $800.

Coroner Edward H. Kruse, conducting an examination of the death of Thomas McConnell, who died suddenly Monday night at the Horstman livery stable, found certificates of deposit to the amount of $800 on the man's person.

MONTENEGRINS BEATEN BACK.

Vienna, Nov. 5.—The correspondent at Scutari of the Reichs Post telegraphs that the Montenegrins again crossed the Boyana river today but that they met a superior force of Turks and were compelled to retire.

Some of the Montenegrin shells hit houses in the Christian quarter of Scutari and a number of persons were wounded.

The Turkish military hospital also was hit by shells fired at a magazine close by.

SEIZE STOLEN NAVAL SUPPLIES

Carload of Junk Valued at $15,000 Was Shipped to Chicago.

MORE IS EXPECTED

Chicago, Nov. 5.—A carload of naval supplies said by the police to have been stolen from the Mare Island navy yard at San Francisco, valued at about $15,000, was seized by federal authorities in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad yards near Hawthorne, Ill., today.

The supplies were seized on a writ issued by United States Judge Kenesaw M. Landis. The car was billed to a smelting and refining company with a plant here.

that a band of thieves has been robbing United States naval yards of supplies aggregating several hundred thousands of dollars. There have been reports that the paper would be moved to an uptown office and still operated by the Hibbards, and other reports have it that the paper will be sold or leased to South Whitley parties outside the owners of the Atoz plant. Matters are still considerably up in the air, but there is no doubt about the big printing edition of the company being discontinued.

This factory has had a wonderful growth and some of the space used by the printing concern is now utilized by the Grip Nut factory. Indianapolis, Nov. 5.—Joseph Woods, a negro clairvoyant was arrested and released under $1,000 bond last night, charged with attacking a nineteen-year-old white girl, a member of a prominent family, whose name the police withhold. The police say that the girl was so pleased with the first reading when she was accompanied by a relative, that she was induced to return later by herself.

It was then according to the information given to the police, that the negro sought to place an "Egyptian charm" in her shoe.

By the use of the charm the attack was made possible. In order that the girl may be shielded, Judge Collins intends to hold a closed session of court. Woods formerly taught school here and says he was graduated from Tuskegee institute.

BUT $852 IN BAN'S VAULTS.

Insane Chicago Man's Institution Almost Void of Cash.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Vaults of the Kirby Savings bank, which was taken charge of by receivers yesterday on the discovery that William T. Kirby, president of the institution, had been insane for some time, were yesterday found to contain but $852. A mob of several hundred persons representing about $50,000 in deposits, it is said, waited outside the bank doors and shouted in rage when the information as to the amount of funds was given them. Police were summoned to disperse the crowd.

The total liabilities of the bank are unknown. The $852 was made up partly of small change and stamps.

This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly, and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Silent "Third Degree."

Under the terrific strain of what is termed the silent "third degree," Charlie Conway finally broke down at Chicago a few days ago and admitted the killing of Miss Singer. This came, too, after the suspect had brazenly and unconcernedly declared his innocence and protested stoutly that he knew nothing whatever of the girl's death.

We have heard much of the various types of the police system's "third degree," by which persons suspected of crime are finally induced to make confession of their guilt. There has been a popular belief that the so-called "third degree" was a thing of torture—necessary, perhaps, under desperate conditions, but always unutterably cruel. The Chicago version, with silence as its dominant feature, seems to be not only a new departure, but one that is strikingly effectual. And while dramatics and threats and bluster and bull-dozing and inquisition are absent, this treatment lacks nothing in the way of terror-striking attributes. It is quite different from solitary confinement as a punishment for over-stepping law. Here the suspected criminal, without knowledge of the extent of evidence in the hands of the police against him, is cast into a darkened cell, remote from human companionship of every kind. Even the guards who pace past his grated doors at stated intervals are forbidden to speak to him or to answer his questions. He sees no other human being. He hears no sound. He has no inkling of the developments of the case against him. He is utterly alone with his conscience. Hour after hour there is for him only reflection and—silence. To the ordinary soul seared with a knowledge of guilt there could scarcely be torture more infinite than that!

Get Ready to Smile.

Perhaps you are one of those whose interest in the campaign has led them to feel strongly. Perhaps you have taken politics so much to heart that you have at times lost your temper and loosed a harsh thing or two regarding the other fellow or the opposition party. It didn't gain you anything, and with the battle now all over but the shouting, you might as well get ready to smile, whether the result, general or local, coincides with your preference or not.

This country is going to continue to be the best on earth, regardless of who wins or who loses. Political parties are a necessity for the operation of popular government, and it is a terrific blunder to assume that all the patriots are on one side of the fence. Primarily all genuine Americans, whether democrats or republicans or progressives or socialists or prohibitionists, desire first of all their country's welfare, and they're sincere about it. They fight for their theories during a campaign, but when it's all over, they accept the result in good faith, forget animosities and doleful forebodings and unite in an optimistic pull all together. Get ready to smile and to pull.

THE GROWING PASSION FOR SERVICE.

When Theodore Roosevelt refused to quit, but made his speech with a bullet in his breast, the world was thrilled. The incident was thrilling. Heroism always uplifts. The man who serves in the face of death serves in two ways—by the task he performs, and by the example he sets.

But Roosevelt stood on a high place and set his copy. That same day old Jim Flannery, 68 years old, was tending his railway crossing in Syracuse, N. Y. A runaway taxicab struck him. He clung to the machine, was carried along by it, bruised in hands, back and arms, and saved from death as by a miracle. A crowd gathered, surrounding him and offering help and conveyance to a hospital.

Old Jim Flannery heard a train approaching, broke through the crowd in spite of failing strength, and WAVED THE TRAIN THROUGH!

The heroes are not those alone who get on the first page in the dispatches!

Bill Rugh's sacrifice of his life in the name of service thrilled the world. Billy gave his lame leg that the surgeons might take its skin for grafting on the body of a young girl who was so burned that she must die unless skin-grafting was resorted to. "Skin for skin, all that a man hath will he give for his life." So say the scriptures. But Billy gave up his skin, and his life with it, for a girl he had never seen. Well did he deserve all the tears of admiration the world shed for him.

But in Mason City, Iowa, about the same time, people came forward to give great patches of skin for a similar operation there. They, too, had the passion for service. Their service was not so spectacular, but it was inspired by the same altruism.

The queen of Bulgaria is serving in the hospitals in the war in Turkey, as a nurse, and clad in a nurse's garb. Many a wounded man may have his temperature taken and his wounds dressed by a queen without knowing it. The queen will, no doubt, be better satisfied if he does not know it. She has the divine passion for service.

In spite of the Beckers and Tammanies, the black hands and all the things of greed and crime that stare us in the face by day and night, the world is growing better.

Crime is loud. Altruism is only occasionally heard. But it is as universal as the sun's worth!

CAR SHORTAGE CAUSES.

That is a rather alarming report of the car shortage situation given by Commissioner Lane, but there is no reason to think it at all exaggerated. There have been complaints of inability to get sufficient cars for some time and with increasing business activity that condition has, of course, become worse. It is being felt most acutely in those sections dependent on coal shipments from a distance for fuel, and it is no overstatement which Mr. Lane makes when he declares that with the advance of winter many people will be in danger of freezing through inability to secure cars for the transportation of coal. Before now car famines have caused just such suffering, as they have interrupted industry by lack of fuel or failure of transportation facilities for raw material or finished product.

Mr. Lane does not refer to the general cause—the return of prosperity in overwhelming force, taxing the railroads beyond their preparations—but he does suggest to shippers and roads three methods that might be employed to mitigate the condition. Prompt unloading would undoubtedly help a great deal. Some system by which railroads with an insufficient equipment could be compelled to return the cars of other roads would at least require the backward companies in future to secure enough cars of their own. He suggests increasing the per diem rate to a sum that would prevent this virtual misappropriation of cars. It has been popularly supposed that the movement of freight trains averages twenty-five miles a day, but according to Commissioner Lane's figures it has either fallen back or that estimate was over-optimistic. It is now set at but twenty miles a day, and while one train is moving, thirteen, he says, are standing still. Obviously, if the movement could be speeded, it would be equivalent to increasing the equipment to that extent, and he urges that greater efficiency ought to produce that result. The railroad answer will probably be that this would be impossible, but the public will be inclined to agree with the commissioner that it ought to be possible. Twenty miles a day seems a very snail-like progress in this age of speed in every other department of activity.

THE PARCELS POST.

(Youngstown Telegram.)

The postoffice department assumes a great task in the installing of the parcels post system in connection with the government mail delivery system. The act establishing the parcels system provides for what may be termed merely an experimental form, but it will probably be found that even this trial form will bring a patronage far beyond all expectations.

The parcels post system will replace in a large degree the express system, but the volume of business transacted under it will undoubtedly far surpass all records of express shipments. The postoffice department and railroads alike must greatly increase their facilities to meet the demand for government controlled transmission of matter other than mail.

That the parcels post system will be successful cannot be questioned. The experimental plan must soon give way to a complete system that should work a revolution in trade relations between manufacturer or producer and middleman and may help in solving the problem of the high cost of living. Special privilege alone prevented the adoption of the parcels post years ago and privilege cannot check it when once under way.

Fine linens and all pieces of handsome lingerie should be wrung out by hand and never through a wringer.

REQUEST SCHOOL TO PROVIDE EATS

Pittsburg Committee Recommends an Elaborate Commissary.

FOR THE STUNDENTS

Pittsburg, Nov. 5.—Midday lunches are to be provided in all high schools and in those elementary schools where needed, at cost, and free of charge in the two open-air schools conducted under the public school system, if the committee on instruction has its way.

This was agreed to in committee after considering the application of the Council of Jewish Women for authority to continue the penny lunch established last year in the Franklin school. The Wimodausis society operated a similar lunch in the Fort Pitt school. Both enterprises were rejected by the committee, which considered them too restricted.

The board is urged to establish kitchens in the nine schools where high school sessions are held, because such students come from long distances. The board is to pay all expenses and food is to be provided at cost. Accommodations are to be provided for those who bring their lunches, or bringers of cold lunch may purchase warm drinks.

Pupils of elementary schools are generally able to go home for lunch, so only a few such luncheon arrangements will be established in the grammar schools. There are two open-air schools, attended by about fifty children in frail health. Food fitting their condition will be provided free of charge. It is not charity, but the diet that induces the gratuity.

The high school lunch plan was adopted largely because of information that the inability of pupils to go home has caused to spring up about the schools lunch enterprises, where cream puffs and the like, which both parents and the school directors consider injurious to health, are sold.

The committee also decided to recommend an evening cooking school in the Peabody-Margaretta building, on petition of a number of women residents and a number of school teachers.

ILLITERACY AT LOWEST MARK.

Census Shows Decrease in Number of Those Who Cannot Rear Nor Write.

Washington, Nov. 5.—There are fewer men, women and children in the United States who can neither read nor write than ever before in the nation's history, according to special illiteracy statistics made public by the census bureau.

In the entire population illiteracy has declined from 10.7 in 1900 to 7.7 per cent in 1910. Among children from 10 to 14 years old the decline has been from 7.2 to 4.1 per cent. In 1910 the whole number of children who could neither read nor write was 370,120—144,650 white and 218,355 negroes and 7,106 Indians, Chinese and Japanese.

Most remarkable of the figures, however, were those for illiteracy of children of foreign or mixed parentage, who live for the most part in cities. For these the percentage was only 0.6 per cent.

FATHER KEPT IN STALL.

Pitiable Object of Young Couple's Indifference Rescued.

Portage, Pa., Nov. 5.—A pathetic case was discovered by Constable Kress when he found Joseph Curky, aged 72 and helpless, locked up in a horse stall in a barn and living like a dog in the straw. Curky, it is said, was placed in the stall by his son-in-law, Michael Gura, who informed the constable that he "didn't have time to bother with the old man." When the officers found Curky he was almost nude and had been subsisting on bones and scraps given him on a platter by Gura. He was a pitiful object and when he caught sight of the officer through the bars which had been placed inside the door he begged to be taken out. He said he had been locked in the stall for several months. Arrangements were made by the county authorities to remove the helpless old man to the county home. He was very grateful for his release from the stall and told the officers that his daughter, who is Gura's wife, was indifferent to his sufferings and was as much to blame as his son-in-law for his condition. The old man is in a weakened condition from exposure and lack of nourishment.

THE DEADLY OPEN WELL.

Held Responsible for Many Cases of Typhoid Fever.

While investigating a case of typhoid fever yesterday, Dr. Gillie traced six cases of the fever to an open well. Mrs. George Preston, of Harlan, is a typhoid patient at Lutheran hospital and Dr. Gillie found that Mrs. Preston contracted the fever while nursing her son, Louis Hartzell, who had been drinking water from an open well. Hartzell, with George Goldsmith and George Brown, were engaged in baling hay on the farm of Noah Amstutz, where the water supply is taken from an open well. The two former young men died from the disease and Brown recovered after a long siege. Two members of the Amstutz family also are ill with the fever.

Mrs. Paul Wehling, 316 Smith St., Peoria, Ill., had kidney and bladder trouble, with terrible backache and pain across the hips. Just imagine her condition. She further says: I was also very nervous, had headaches and dizzy spells, and was fast getting worse when I took Foley Kidney Pills, and now all my troubles are cured. Foley Kidney Pills have done so much for me I shall always recommend them." Foley Kidney Pills are rich in curative qualities and contain no habit forming drugs. Try them. Dreier Drug Co.—Adv.

WAR ON FAKE MINCEMEAT.

Oklahoma Health Department Declares Much of it Is Farce.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov 5.—Mincemeat sold in Oklahoma must contain not less than 10 per cent of meat, says the October bulletin issued by the state department of health, following the activity joined in by several states to raise the standard of mincemeat. Many samples of so-called mincemeat were found not to contain any meat at all.

Several amendments to the food and drug laws of the state should be made, says the bulletin. It is recommended that there would be a great saving of time if these complaints could be lodged with justices of the peace.

Isaac Schafer is Oldest Election Official in Allen County.

A PIONEER RESIDENT

Time has rested lightly on the shoulders of Isaac Schafer, one of the oldest pioneer residents of Fort Wayne. He declares that he feels no ill effects from the wear and tear of years, and today, at the advanced age of 81, he is serving as election sheriff in the Eighth precinct of the Third ward, at 1934 Calhoun street, and is cheerfully greeting the voters.

ISAAC SCHAFER,
At Age of Eighty-One Years Serves on Election Board.

Mr. Schafer has served as a member of the election board in Allen county during many previous elections, and he is widely known and deeply respected. The aged man conducts his official duties in a most efficient manner, and is apparently as active as any of his brother officials, in spite of his age.

Here Seventy Years.

Mr. Schafer has been a resident of Fort Wayne for nearly seventy years. He was born in Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., and at an early age moved with his parents to Ohio. At the age of eleven years he came to Fort Wayne and has lived here continuously except for six years which he spent at Columbia City, in Whitley county. Mr. Schafer came to Fort Wayne by way of the old Wabash and Erie canal.

Soon after reaching this city Mr. Schafer learned the carpenter trade, which he followed continuously until retiring a few years ago. In the early days he was employed at the shop of Cochran & Humphrey, but later went into business for himself. While a resident of Columbia City he served as treasurer of the Whitley county school fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Schafer are the parents of nine children, as follows: Charles H. Schafer, of Fort Wayne; George T. Schafer, of Chicago; John W. Schafer, of Fort Wayne; William J. Schafer, of Chicago; Mrs. E. A. Smith, of Benton Harbor, Mich.; Mrs. R. E. Outhauk, of Chicago; Mrs. H. P. Moore, of Columbia City; Mrs. I. Byall and Burge Schafer, of Fort Wayne.

DONATE ACRE TO CITY.

Park Board Gets Start on Proposed Foster Park Entrance.

An acre of land, bounded on the north by the Bluffton road, on the east by Broadway and on the west by the St. Mary's river now belongs to the city of Fort Wayne. This strip formerly belonged to the Beaver estate, but all of the heirs have quit claimed to the property, and Secretary Steiss received the document back from London, where two of the heirs reside. The park board is planning to make a beautiful entrance to Foster park and as soon as several other strips of land in that neighborhood can be acquired the Bluffton road will be straightened and an elaborate parkway leading to the park will be made.

WALL WILL RECOVER.

Jeffersonville Police Chief Victim of Bicycle Accident.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Nov. 5.—Mike Wall, chief of police, while riding to a fire early today ran into Mike Dreidel, a merchant, who ran into the street to see where the fire was. Wall was thrown from his bicycle into a telephone post and knocked unconscious. Dreidel was knocked down. Wall was supposed to be fatally hurt, but today he is pronounced out of danger but unable to move. Dreidel was not badly hurt.

MERCHANTS WILL BACK TEST CASE

Retailers Think Council Has Not Done Them Justice

IN SIGN ORDINANCE

If the city council ignores the petitions being circulated by merchants of the city, asking for a modification of the new sign ordinance, the first attempt of the building inspector to remove a sign will be met with an injunction suit by the sign owner, who will be backed by the Fort Wayne Retail Merchants' association.

At the regular meeting of the retailers' association, held Monday night at the Commercial club, it was the sentiment of the members that the council has not given the business men due consideration in the sign question. The petition that is being signed by all owners of signs that do not conform with the ordinance, will be presented to the council at its meeting next Tuesday evening. Until that time Building Inspector Wyss will not attempt to enforce the ordinance, except for serving notices.

The committee representing the merchants' association in looking after the sign matter, is composed of George M. Haffner, chairman; George J. Parrot, I. M. Hallenstein, Harry Achenbach, L. J. Libbing, G. H. Heine, L. E. Heiny and Charles Niebergall.

S. E. Mulholland, of the Indiana Lighting company; Bitner & Gumbler, the Cadillac restaurant, Weinand Bros., Mrs. Charles D. Bradley, M. E. Rice and William M. Griffin were made members of the association. Mr. Griffin, Mr. Haffner and Coony Bayer were named as a committee to act with the board of public safety in the matter of stopping vehicles along the curbing in the down town district.

M. Frank, a member of the organization, whose golden wedding anniversary was being celebrated yesterday, received the congratulations of the members and he responded with an appropriate speech.

OFFERS HER SKIN TO GAIN HUSBAND

Indianapolis Woman Will Aid Chicago Sufferer for Consideration.

ASKS ENOUGH TO WED

Chicago, Nov. 5.—In order to wed the man who is waiting for her an Indianapolis woman has agreed to give her skin to save Mrs Sigurd Benson, 4528 Ellis avenue, who has been confined to the hospital more than a year as the result of burns received from the explosion of a gasoline stove.

The offer was made in a letter to a local newspaper yesterday. The proposal and the conditions follow:

"I will gladly give the required amount of skin for Mrs. Benson's recovery under the following terms:

"No effort be made to learn my right name.

"Not enough skin to be taken from me to endanger my life.

"Some of the generous men of Chicago to pay me a couple of hundred dollars for the pain and time it will cost me.

Knows Generosity of Chicagoans.

"I know the men of Chicago well enough to know how gladly they will dig into their pockets to help one in trouble. My two reasons for making this offer are, because I have been through the bitter experience of motherlessness, and because that sum of money will enable me to pay my debts and to marry the man who is waiting for me."

The letter gives an assumed name and tells how the writer may be reached by communications.

The letter came within twenty-four hours after the needs of Mrs. Benson were set forth in print. The plea produced further results.

Many Others Offer Skin.

Yesterday several persons telephoned Dr. Emanuel Friend, who is attending Mrs. Benson at the Michael Reese hospital, offering to give small quantities of cuticle for the benefit of the injured woman. If a dozen more offers are received it is probable the operation will be performed on Thursday afternoon. A score of volunteers will enable the surgeons to take such small patches of skin from each that none will be incapacitated.

Mrs. Benson, whose husband is employed as a chauffeur by Emanuel S. Heyman, 4529 Ellis avenue, has been at the hospital since July 16, 1911. Her limbs are terribly burned, and although some of the injured surfaces have healed over, a skin grafting operation is necessary before her recovery may be assured and allow her to return to her husband and two little daughters.

BISHOP M'DOWELL TO NORTH INDIANA

Assignments Are Made by Methodist Church's Board.

SPRING CONFERENCES

Toledo, O., Nov. 5.—Assignments of bishops to presidential authority over conferences in districts where spring conferences are to be held during the months of March, April and May of next year, arranged by the board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, were announced yesterday. In most instances bishops were assigned to presidential authority in conference districts where they have residential authority, that they may become thoroughly acquainted through conferences with their respective districts.

This plan of allotment was adopted because the system of assigning bishops to residential authority over groups of conference districts but recently was adopted. Beginning with next fall conferences, bishops will be assigned to presidential authority in districts other than those over which they have residential authority by the recently adopted quadrennium plan

Spring conferences of 1913 number about one-third of the total number of Methodist conferences. Fully two-thirds of the conferences are held in the fall. The board of bishops concluded the active sessions of its annual meeting here Saturday evening. Among the appointments made is that of Bishop W. F. McDowell to the North Indiana conference.

If you have on your hands a curdled mayonnaise the ingredients may be saved, though the labor is lost. Place it in a cold place, and the olive oil in it will gradually rise to the surface, leaving the egg and other ingredients in the form of sediment at the bottom. Pour off the oil, straining if necessary, and prepare a new mayonnaise with it.

Mrs. Mary Deakin and Miss Margery Deakin, of London, England, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank I. Brown for several weeks, met intimate friends and relatives of their hostess at an informal buffet luncheon at 1 o'clock today. White garden chrysanthemums and outdoor foliage formed the decoration of the diningroom and living room. The visitors will leave on Friday for Indianapolis to visit friends there and will return here for Thanksgiving.

The most elaborate and beautiful reception given in many months was the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary by Mr. and Mrs. Marx Frank in the Commercial club last evening. Several hundred of their friends assembled during the reception hours to extend their cordial greetings and wishes for many future years of continued happiness and prosperity to this prominent couple, who have been identified with the business and social life of the city all during their married life. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Frank were their two children, Theodore Frank, Mrs. Theodore Frank and their sons, Eugene and Jack, and Mrs. Minnie Frank Schloss and her husband, Jack Schloss, of St. Joseph, Mo. Other near relatives who were in line to meet the city guests, were Mrs. Sam Thanhouser, Mrs. J. August, of Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. R. M. Eppstein, of Chicago; Mrs. A. J. August and Miss Elaine August, and Mrs. Ben Philip, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. Joe Wiler, of Logansport, and Victor Wolf, of New York city. Mrs. Frank wore her wedding gown, a handsome white satin with yoke and sleeves of duchess point and a modish overdrapery of black chantilly lace with touches of gold trimming about the neck and on the sleeves. In her hair Mrs. Frank wore a white aigrette and gold leaf ornament and she made a very handsome appearance. Everyone agreed that no more youthful looking couple celebrating fifty years of wedded life could be found anywhere. Mrs. Theodore Frank wore a beautiful gown of heliotrope shade with gold lace draperies and Mrs. Schloss wore a pink charmeuse satin in costume. Many elegant costumes were seen among the guests and the beautiful decorations of the hall made a back ground for brilliant colors and many jewels. Music was furnished during the evening from a screened alcove and elaborate refreshments were served in the private dining rooms. The tables were laid in hand-some lace covers and vases of the small yellow chrysanthemums decorated each table. The salon and ballroom of the club presented an extremely artistic and effective appearance with a decoration of southern smilax, russet oak leaves, golden chrysanthemums of both large and small variety of blossoms and many palms. The Misses Flick did the work and no detail was overlooked. The stairway was entwined with oak foliage with clusters of the chrysanthemums and ferns about the newell posts and standing on the piano and about the salon. Upstairs the hall had been converted into an immense drawingroom. There were rugs on the floor, draperies to the alcoves, shaded lights and flowers; palms and southern smilax everywhere. The walls were half hidden in the smilax and the lovely chrysanthemum blossoms made a rich contrasting note that told its own story, the golden wedding day. One of the many flower gifts Mr. and Mrs. Frank received was two or three dozen American beauty roses with long stems and they formed the only differing color in the decorative scheme.

Mrs. Edith Andrews entertained the members of the Monday Night five hundred club at dinner last evening. The menu was one both bountiful and excellent of cuisine. Covers were laid for sixteen. This evening the same company will form a party at the Temple vaudeville. This card club has been meeting regularly every winter for many years.

Miss Clara Nahrwold, of East Lewis street, has returned from an extended western trip during which she visited with Rev. and Mrs. P. Dannenfeldt, of Wheatland, Wyo. Mrs. Dannenfeldt was formerly Miss Emilie Koehler, of this city. On her return trip Miss Nahrwold visited her sister and her husband, Rev. and Mrs. I. Joeckel, of Germantown, Neb., and stopped in Chicago with friends for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook entertained the following friends at cards and dancing followed by an elegant supper: Mr. and Mrs. C. Cooper, Misses Anna and Louise Henschen, Laura Delegrange, May White, Anna Parnin, Alma Poirson, Martha Houser and Charles, Earl and Ray Pfeiffer, John and Will Ohneck, Clem and Julian Huguenard, Herschel and Edward Rowley, Frank and Clarence White, Charles Pratt, Edwin Henschen, George Golden, Charles Harshbarger, Albert Houser, Ralph Dunn, C. Bloom, W. Wilson and C. White.

Miss Alexa Weber, of Clinton street, was given an agreeable surprise on Sunday afternoon when a company of schoolmates called at her home to remind her of her eleventh birth anniversary. Mrs. Weber was in the secret and she prepared a number of things in the way of games to be played, a fine supper and pretty decorations for the supper table. The guests at this good time were Rosamond Dove, Madeline Bresnahan, Coletta Pierre and Lucile Parnin, who won prizes in the various contests, and Alma Centlivre, Agnes Foohey, Lucile Cochoit, Celeste Bresnahan, Esther Rolape, Helen Perrey, Mary Cummings, Marie Beauchot, Anna Rostetter and Florence Carroll.

When Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Golden came home from Rome City last night, after a six weeks' stay there, they found their home lighted and family relatives and friends gathered to bid them welcome. The surprise was on Mrs. Golden, who had not the faintest inkling of what was to happen. Mr. Golden not only planned the dinner party, for such it was, but he kept his secret perfectly. The day was the thirty-first anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Golden. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock and there were covers for eighteen. The table and rooms were beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. The dinner was an example of perfection in service and culinary art. After dinner the guests enjoyed a game of cards.

BILLIE BURKE TELLS MEN.

WHAT WOMEN LIKE IN THEM.

By Billie Burke.

THE FIRST WORD: Almost every woman prefers to be treated as an equal and respected to being placed upon a pedestal and worshipped.

I think every woman who goes out into the world to earn her living, whether as an artist or a business woman, wishes at times that men would be more chary of their compliments and more ready to respect her opinions. It is a sad commentary upon the masculine sex today that a good-looking woman can obtain favors in the business world for which her ugly sister can never hope, notwithstanding the homely girl may be better fitted for the coveted position than the beauty. This condition obtains often in my profession, and, although I consider beauty a kind of fifth wheel to the coach of an actress, yet the pretty actress is apt to arrive sooner than the brainy one who has no physical attractions. No actress can keep up to the mark of success without brains.

MISS BILLIE BURKE.

A very famous man has said: "Compliment a brainy woman upon her beauty and a beauty upon her brains." I am quite sure that most pretty women get very tired of being told of their attractions.

If you sincerely think a woman looks well tell her so, but do not tell her that she is attractive, or fascinating, or beautiful just because you think she would like to hear it. The thing most women like best in a man is sincerity, and I sometimes think that sincerity is the thing men like least in a woman. Women like frankness in the other sex when it cuts deep into their self-conceit. They long so intensely to be treated as equals that they are perfectly willing to take the frank buffets of speech that one man gives to another without holding rancor. Personally a compliment upon my work, upon my taste in dress or the decoration of my home means much more to me than a eulogy of my pleasing physical attractions. Although I work hard and think much of my personal appearance, as it is one of the tools which I use in my art, yet I am better pleased when some one tells me that I have interpreted a great emotion or made visible the motive by dramatic action.

Some men seem to think that all they have to do is to say pretty things to a woman to gain her interest in themselves. If they can only realize how sick and tired most women get of these same compliments over and over again they would take a little thought and be original in their flattery. Every woman of brains likes a well-turned compliment for the wit there is in it, even when she knows the man is stretching the truth a little, but the mere iteration and reiteration of "you are beautiful in red, or green, or blue" (or whatever color you may be wearing at the time) is nauseating to sane-minded women.

JUST ONE LAST WORD: If you are neither truthful nor witty you should avoid flattery.

Mrs. Marshment's Original Recipes.

As Demonstrated at The Sentinel Free Cooking School.

Make a dressing of one cup bread crumbs, one level teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, one teaspoonful ground sage, one teaspoonful minced onion and a level teaspoonful minced parsley, one egg. Mix well, fill the turkeys, tie into shape and bake forty-five minutes.

HAMBURG ROAST—One and one-half pounds of beef and one-half pound fresh pork, cut fine; one small onion minced, one tablespoonful minced parsley, one teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful pepper, one heaping teaspoonful of flour, one egg. Shape into a loaf after mixing well and bake thirty minutes. Serve this with Mexican sauce, for which the recipe has been given.

CREOLE STEAK—Take a flank steak about 1 inch thick, mince fine two large onions, two medium sized green peppers, one cup of tomato. Mix well and spread over the steak. Salt well and bake one hour.

AT THE TEMPLE

Yes, see the Temple vaudeville this week, for it's good. Not a moment of anything slow and if some number starts out in a way you may think just like something else, you will change your mind the next minute. That is just what Nes Nestor and Bess Delberg want you to think, for they announce in the program "The same old story in a different way," and they surely make good. Mr. Nestor yodles unusually well. Tom and Stacia Moore also have an act that combines much high class work with most attractive entertainment. Their act is splendid. Mr. Moore sings and recites both equally well. His coon songs are perfect and—but there's no use telling all about him. Just don't miss his act or seeing Miss Moore in her numerous and handsome gowns and the sweet smile she wears as well.

The headliners this week are the boys who play polo on their bicycles. It is an exciting novelty and women find themselves just as interested as the men and boys. The playing is swift and the contest real.

The Carl Pantzer trio presents a stunning novelty. Two of the company are skilled contortionists and the third plays the piano a bit and fits in. The act has a different setting from its kind, the work is all done without speaking a word and the combination of grace and the grotesque make it attractive. The act takes well.

A harpist is not a novelty, but a harpist who plays ragtime and picks medleys off the strings just as one would from piano keys, is. Such skill has Roxy LaRocca. The young man has great technique, as well as musical taste. He plays medleys and no sooner gets the audience almost humming "Annie Laurie," "The Mocking Bird," or a well known rag time tune than he has easily run into some other melody just as familiar. Audiences yesterday were delighted with the act.

"Meet me at the Fountain" is an act by Charles Horwitz, a famous soft shoe dancer. The setting is elaborate and the act turns out to be entertaining, with clever dancing by Mr. Horwitz and the two young women assisting.

The excellence of the bill this week can not be enumerated without mentioning the work of the Temple orchestra. Their selections are especially pleasing. The Gaumont weekly pictures keep up the standard.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

PLAY AND COMPANY SCORE HIT.

Edna Marshall in "The Price" Opens Three Days' Engagement at the Majestic.

No play in years has so ruthlessly torn away the veil from our false and unfair civilization or shown the weakness and its unjust sex standards, or has more dissected its follies and foibles as has "The Price," an intensely human drama by George Broadhurst, which opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic last night. It is a picture of real life, that does not gloss over facts nor dodge issues. There is nothing weak or hypocritical about it. It tells the truth and tells it boldly, bravely and well. The story is intensely interesting with dramatic power rarely equalled in a modern drama. Every character is worthy of the best efforts of a star. It grips you from the rise of the curtain and holds you till its final fall.

The dramatic center of interest is Ethel Toscani, a refined girl who has made one fatal misstep, but unlike any character of similar description in any other play ever written. Edna Marshall, a young emotional actress, portrays this wonderful part and is supported by one of the best casts seen at the Majestic this season.

Election returns will be read from the stage this evening.

First Time at Popular Prices.

An epic of the Old West, "The Great Divide," the play that gave Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller such renown, is to be the attraction at the Majestic theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with the usual Saturday matinee. It will be offered by the Phillips-Shaw Co., who bring with them all the original massive scenic embellishments that were used during the successful run of this wondrous story of the Arizona land in both New York and Chicago. Albert Phillips, as the cowboy brute who barters with Ruth Jordan for the possession of her body, is said to give to that character a delineation co-equal with that of the originator of the role and the transition of his personality from the rough, uncouth miner, to the gentle, considerate husband and father, through the influence of a woman's gentle love, will be found a master stroke of stage art. Miss Leila Shaw, as the girl of the Cordilleras (the top of the world) through whose influence the regeneration takes place, will be found a woman's woman, who in the transition of her art portrays the girl who sells herself to save her honor with a firmness only co-equal to her conception of the role of the lover, who through that love reborns a man and offers to the man of her choice. A clever cast is said to be part of this presentation, the first offering of this woman's play at popular prices should prove an added magnet to draw the lovers of all that is true in dramatic art to the Majestic.

"The Confession."

Distinguished people, engaged especially for their exceptional ability, will interpret James Halleck Reid's play, "The Confession," which comes to the Majestic next Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. Reid's manuscript is said to contain in its theme a story of the most vital importance, with an uplift, a purpose and a great lesson.

BIG AND LITTLE BAGS FOR THE BRIDE.

GIRLS, why don't you have a BAG SHOWER?

The little things are scarcely ever thought about when the bride to be is planning her home. The trousseau and the social engagements are usually the chief thought. So why not do something for your best girl friend that no one else will dream of trying.

"Oh, bags are such ordinary things," someone will say. True, but they are so immensely useful, too. And there is no reason why they shouldn't be as dainty and pretty as everything else in the new home.

The hostess may easily find out the color scheme in the different rooms in the house. She and one or two of the other girls, who will be guests at the shower, may be a committee to buy the goods. The making will furnish a happy occupation for odd moments the days intervening between the receipt of the invitation and the shower.

Bags will immediately bring to mind all sorts of ideas. Just a few suggestions are offered here to help along.

A bag for rubbers may be made out of heavy cretonne and lined with a removable pocket of oil cloth.

A fancy silk bag with silk duster for the parlor will be useful and pretty.

A pantry bag of denim in the color of the kitchen wall paper will meet with any good little housekeeper's approval.

A twine bag, a stocking bag, shoe bag, clothespin bag, a handkerchief bag and a dirty-clothes bag may all be made so that they are a delight to the girl who is beginning a home life of her own.

The idea may seem a trifle mundane the telling. But a few bits of bright ribbon and some initial embroidery skilfully used with daintily figured pieces of material will be their own reward for the little work they will require.

It won't be fair to leave "HIM" out, so I suggest a soiled collars bag and maybe a slipper bag. Of course, when you begin planning, there'll be many other bags you'll think of. Try it.

EXPECT TO GAIN SENATE CONTROL

Democrats Hopeful of Securing Upper House Majority.

OLD GUARD FALLING

Washington, Nov. 5.—A titanic struggle between political forces for control of the United States senate marks the close of the campaign. Developments on the eve of the election indicate a strong probability that the control of the senate may be shifted today from the republicans to the democrats.

In the senate today are fifty republicans, forty-three democrats and three vacancies. In order to wrest this control from the republicans, the democrats must make a gain of at least six senators.

Must Gain Six.

In a total membership of ninety-six a majority is forty-nine. The democrats now have only forty-three. Vacancies will occur March 4 next in thirty-three states, and thirty-six senators are to be chosen, there being vacancies in Colorado, Idaho and Illinois that necessitate the election of two senators in each by the legislatures to be chosen today.

A number of prominent members of the senate are in danger of defeat as the result of the voting. Senator Warren, of Wyoming, is one of the most conspicuous of these. The democrats there are making a desperate effort to capture the legislature. The attacks on Warren because of land deals and other matters are a factor in the situation.

For a time it was thought here Senator Borah, of Idaho, would be defeated. He is not out of danger entirely, but the death of Senator Heyburn has served to bring the two republican factions in the state together. This has helped Senator Borah's prospects.

Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, is in a close fight and is in danger of defeat at the hands of a prominent democrat, former Representative Dan W. Hamilton. Senator Kenyon is working hard and has the support of Senator Cummins. Senator Kenyon won in the primary last June over Lafayette Young, who was snowed under, but the question now is whether the republicans or democrats will control the legislature.

Many in Hard Straits.

Senator Bourne is running for the senate on an independent ticket in Oregon. His success is doubtful. The indications favor election of the democratic candidate.

Indications point to the defeat of Senator Dixon, in Montana, and the election of T. J. Walsh, the democratic candidate.

W. H. Thompson, the democratic nominee in Kansas, is hopeful of winning, in view of the factional situation, and of defeating Governor Stubbs, who was nominated over Senator Curtis.

One of the most interesting situations is in Nebraska. Representative Norris is running against former Governor Shallenberger. Norris has an uphill fight, but his great personal popularity may enable him to win. The Oregon plan in force in Nebraska is to the advantage of Judge Norris.

Senator Owen has strong opposition in Oklahoma, but will probably win out. Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, long a picturesque figure in the senate, is one of the republican senators in danger of defeat. Senator Massey, of Nevada, is another. Senator Briggs, of New Jersey, is likely to be succeeded by a democratic representative.

ONLY THREE OFFENDERS.

City Court Docket Was Slightly Abbreviated This Morning.

It seems that everyone wanted to be free on election day and made sure to keep out of trouble, for there were only three men on the city court docket this morning. Ambrose Trainer, of Decatur, got too much to drink while here yesterday, but Judge Mungovan let him go because he didn't want to see him lose his vote. William Dunlap, charged with drunkenness, also was allowed to go. Josinn Campaianni, up for malicious trespass, drew a continuance until Nov. 7.

WILL ANYBODY BE ELECTED PRESIDENT TODAY? WILL THERE BE A DEADLOCK UP TO MARCH 4? POSSIBILITIES OF A TREMENDOUS SITUATION AS A RESULT OF THE THREE-CORNERED FIGHT.

SECRETARY OF STATE PHILANDER KNOX AND MRS. KNOX.

(By W. H. Alburn.)

Never before in the history of the United States have so many political complications been possible as might result from today's election.

There have been three-cornered contests for the presidency, as in 1860; there have been "no elections," as in 1800 and 1824, and there was the troublesome problem of the Hayes-Tilden contest in 1876, but to-day's possibilities make those affairs look like simple addition and subtraction compared with a problem in calculus.

The first big element of uncertainty lies in the election itself. Never since Lincoln's election have there been more than two candidates for the presidency, each of whom is considered to have a chance of winning.

The two-party calculations, on which political wiseacres for a generation have based their prophecies, are all upset. Republican estimates, based on past elections, are made worthless by defections to the bull moose party. The moose itself offers absolutely no data on which to base a forecast.

The democratic party has been least shaken by recent events; its leaders declare that it is united as it has never been since Cleveland's second election, and they seem sure of victory, and yet—nobody knows.

All that can be said today is this: Wilson is admitted by nearly everybody to be the best bet; Taft is admitted by most persons to have the least chance, and IF THERE IS A LANDSLIDE for anybody, IT WILL GO TO ROOSEVELT.

Such a landslide (and there have been some signs of it since Roosevelt was shot at Milwaukee) might elect the colonel or it might prevent the election of anybody by swinging enough democratic votes to keep Wilson from getting a majority of the electoral congress.

Such a possibility—"no election," after all the noise and fury of the last year—is the big fact that looms up as 15,000,000 voters go to the polls.

Failure of the people to elect an executive would be but the beginning of "confusion worse confounded." For the election would then be thrown into congress, and there the present situation promises a deadlock such as has never yet occurred.

The choice of a president would devolve upon the house of representatives, and of a vice-president upon the senate.

The present house would have a hard time electing anybody. For the house is required in such case to vote by states, each state having one vote. There are 22 republican delegations and 22 democratic, with the other four equally divided. It takes 25 states to elect. Either party, therefore, if it holds its own, has to gain three more states to give its candidate the 25 votes needed for a majority.

If both democrats and republicans stand fast, therefore, there will be a deadlock. If the Taft republicans lose some delegations to the progressives, as they probably will, there may still be a deadlock. An election would depend, apparently, on republicans going over to Wilson, or progressives getting enough votes from democrats and republicans to elect Roosevelt.

If the house is deadlocked until March 4, the vice-president, chosen by the senate, will become president, just as if the president had died. But the senate also may be deadlocked.

The senators in such an election vote individually and a majority of 49 is needed to elect. There is a republican majority in the present senate, but that majority is not very dependable. Over and over again progressive senators have voted with the democrats, leaving the republicans in the minority. They may do so in this case.

The democrats have 42 senators. The republicans have 51. There are three vacancies. It is uncertain how those vacancies will be filled. The republicans, at any rate, are likely to lose the votes of La Follette, Gronna and Works, all progressives, thus lacking one of a majority. They may lose many more. Progressives—Roosevelt men and others—will hold the balance of power. Again—nobody knows.

If the senate fails to elect one of the two vice-presidential candidates having the highest popular vote—choosing presumably between Marshall and Johnson—then on March 4 Secretary Knox will become acting president, establishing a new precedent in American political history.

He will be obliged to call a special session of congress for the purpose of authorizing another popular election for president and vice-president.

Such an election would probably involve a repetition of the 1912 campaign, with presidential primaries playing a bigger part, and the election would probably be held next November and the successful candidate take office on March 4, 1913.

Moreover, congress would probably take steps to abolish the ridiculous system which makes such confusion possible and establish some form of direct election instead of the present electoral college plan.

HOW ANY ONE OF SIX MEN MIGHT BECOME PRESIDENT ON MARCH 4.

Here is the surprising list of presidential possibilities as a result of the failure of the country to elect a president on November 5:

President Taft may be re-elected. His success depends on his ability to hold the 22 state delegations in the house of representatives, which have a republican majority, and also gain three or four state delegations which are half republican and half democratic.

Woodrow Wilson will be elected if he can hold the 22 state delegations in the house of representatives which have a democratic majority, and also gain three or four state delegations, which are half republican and half democratic.

Theodore Roosevelt may be elected by breaking the natural deadlock between Taft and Wilson in the house.

Governor Marshall of Indiana may become president in the same way, by winning the vice-presidency through a senate vote and succeeding to the presidency.

Hiram Johnson, the bull moose candidate, may win by the same method.

Philander C. Knox, present secretary of state, may become president through a deadlock in both house and senate, whereby both the presidency and vice-presidency would go by default. He would thus automatically become acting president, serving until a new congress should order another election and a president be chosen in the regular way.

JOKED AS SURGEON CUT.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 5.—When Thomas Dougherty fell down stairs at his home last night he ripped two-thirds of the scalp from his head.

He was rushed to the University hospital and, lighting his pipe, sat coolly and watched the surgeon cut away the scalp, lay it on a marble slap, shave off all the hair. Then the surgeon laid the scalp back on the head and sewed it on. Dougherty had his cranium bandaged up and took a car for home.

He joked with the surgeons all the while and said the shave was the latest fad.

BETTER RESULTS FROM THE BENCH

Fred Clark Says He is Convinced He Can Do His Best There.

IS NOT HANDICAPPED

(By Fred Clarke, Manager Pittsburgh Baseball Team.)

I have been requested to state why I believe a baseball club can be managed more advantageously from the bench than from the field. Before deciding to give up my playing position in left field and direct the game from the back of the scenes, I gave the matter a long and serious consideration. After looking at the situation from every possible angle I became more than ever determined that the opportunities for bringing out the best results were far greater for the bench manager than for the field manager. When you come to sift it right down to common sense the reasons are easily comprehended.

Take the player who is engaged in the game. He has about all he can do to think from the player's standpoint, and there is a great deal of quick thinking to be done by every man on the diamond during every minute the game is in progress. His eyes must be constantly open and his mind must be ready to grasp instantly any situation that may suddenly develop. It is necessary for him to be prepared to do his particular part from the instant the ball leaves the hand of the pitcher.

Thinking is one of the most important factors in baseball, and no matter how perfectly a man can handle the ball, he will never make a success in the game unless he is a good thinker.

Now when a man who is engaged in the game must think for himself, and in addition to that must do the planning for all the rest of the players, he is burdened with a handicap that is certain to prevent him at many times from obtaining the best results.

The fellow who directs operations from the bench is free from this obstacle. He is able to concentrate his mind on one thing. He has a far better opportunity to detect the weaknesses of the other team and at the same time to discern the strongest points of his own players. When he is not engaged in the game he is also enabled to figure out the various plays to greater advantage.

Two ball teams in a game are like two armies on the field of battle. Each side has adopted a certain line of defense. It is necessary to form an attack that will break that defense, and at the same time you must be prepared to put up a defense that will prevent the opposing club from breaking your own method of attack. Each manager, like the commanding officer in a battle, uses a different system to provide the ways and means of getting results.

No two ball players are alike. Some are obedient and will execute every order exactly as it is given to them. Others require a certain amount of coaxing. Not a few of them must be fairly pushed along, and now and then one must actually be driven. Each man has a different temperament, and the manager cannot hope to meet with ultimate success unless he is able fully to understand all these matters. He must know exactly how to handle every player under his direction.

These are the most important things that are to be worked out by the man who is placed at the head of a baseball team, and when a manager is required to keep all these details in his mind and at the same time to play the game, he certainly is lessening the chances of his club.

It stands to reason that the person who must think of two things at one time is bound to be at a disadvantage with the man who is free to place all his thoughts upon the one subject. That is the whole matter in a nutshell, and that is why I am thoroughly convinced that a bench manager has far more opportunity than the player manager.

Many games have been lost by teams that were led through the fray by a player that would have been won if he had been able to see what was going on without the necessity of concentrating his whole thought on a single play. This has often been pointed out and it is true.

A baseball league is an interesting institution. It is made up of many players formed into groups called clubs. Each club is like a happy family. It is necessary to see that the players observe certain rules and thus live in harmony during an entire season.

Such matters must be looked after by the manager. He conducts the playing end of the game the same as the president of the club runs the business part dent of the club runs the business part his own system of taking care of the vast amount of work that falls upon his shoulders, the same as each manager has a different method of directing his men. Both, however, have the same aim—to get results.

It is the greatest ambition of both the owner and the manager to produce a winning club, and, if possible, to land the highest title in professional sport—the world's championship.

MANDOT HAD THE SHADE IN FIGHT

Two Newspapers and Referee Give New Orleans Lad the Best of It.

DECIDED THE WAGERS

New Orleans, La., Nov. 5.—Wagers on the Wolgast-Mandot fight here last night were decided today by opinion expressed by the sport writers of the four local newspapers in favor of the backers of Mandot.

The fight, according to agreement, was without a referee's decision and the wagers, running into several thousand dollars, were based on the newspaper men's decisions. Two papers gave the fight to Mandot and one called it a draw. The opinion of the fourth will not be known until this afternoon but even should it be for Wolgast the three opinions already made public, counting the draw as a half vote, as is the custom, give the bout to the local boy.

Ed W. Smith, of Chicago, who refereed the fight, said that Mandot had a "narrow escape" in the third round; that "he weathered the next rounds up to the sixth," that his clean work from that to the middle of the seventh even the fight, and that "he undoubtedly had a clean shade during the last two rounds and a half," and "must be considered a strong contender for Wolgast's title."

The following special from New Orleans to the Chicago Record-Herald says the battle was a draw:

"Joe Mandot, the French baker boy, and Ad Wolgast, holder of the world's lightweight championship, fought ten gruelling rounds to a draw in one of the greatest battles ever fought in a local ring.

"Blood was spilled freely and the crowd was carried off its feet time and again by the fierce rallies of both men. According to the poll of local sport writers it was Mandot's fight, but veteran sportsmen gathered around the ringside advanced the opinion that it was a good draw, with Wolgast evening up Mandot's long distance boxing with his wonderful work while in close. However, all agreed that it was a battle, with a long distance encounter needed to decide the better man. Mandot was a 9 to 10 favorite before the battle.

"It was the greatest fight held here since Corbett knocked out Sullivan, many, many years ago, and the streets resembled Mardi Gras night with its thousands of people who were unable to gain admittance to the park. The fight in itself will probably go down as one of the fiercest of ten rounds, not excepting the Ketchell-Papo mill at Milwaukee seven years back.

"The boys, both in the prime of condition, entered the ring shortly after 10:30 and cheer after cheer rent the air. Mandot was first to appear, accompanied by his brother Harry Coleman, his manager, and "Hobo" Dougherty, former trainer of Wolgast. The crowd went wild when the little southerner climbed into the ring, and the cheering hardly quieted down when Wolgast was lifted into the ring by the blustering Tom Jones. He, too, received a warm welcome."

HANS WAGNER BREAKS ALL BATTING AVERAGES.

The "Flying Duitchman" Hits Better Than .300 Throughout Big League Career of 16 Years and Tops "Pop" Anson's High Mark.

Think of batting better than .300 for sixteen consecutive years in a major league!

This is the unparalleled achievement of John ("Hans") Wagner, the wonder man of the Pittsburgh baseball club; the man who goes along year after year hitting the ball with the same deadly precision that has made him a nightmare to pitchers ever since he joined the Louisville club in 1897.

Hans finished the season of 1912 with an unofficial batting average of .326 (the official figures won't change it much), a figure he has fallen below but twice in his big league career. He batted .320 in 1910 and .305 in 1898. His grand average for sixteen years is .342. He has played in 2169 games, been at bat 8238 times, scored 1502 runs, made 2829 hits and stolen 638 bases.

And "Hans" closed the year without noticeable loss of his marvelous speed, dimness of eye or lack of dexterity in the greatest pair of hands in baseball.

Before Hans Wagner established his record "Pop" Anson was peerless among the game's great batters. Anson's record was fifteen straight years in the .300 class.

Wagner, barring accidents, will be with the Pirates in 1913 and it is to be expected that he will again bat better than .300 and establish a record of seventeen successive years in the .300 class.

Only eight players besides Wagner have batted .300 or better for ten years in succession in the past thirty-six years.

Anson batted .300 for fifteen years; Dan Brouthers, 14; Willie Keeler, 13; Ed Delehanty and Joe Kelley, 11 each; Hugh Duffey, Jesse Burkett and Nap Lajoie, 10 each.

Of the present day stars Lajoie has the best chance to equal Anson's record. Wagner of course not being considered; Lajoie fell below .300 in 1907 and 1908. He is again batting effectively, however, and this year took high rank.

Wagner and Lajoie started in the major league at the same time—1897. Wagner began at Louisville, then in the National, and Lajoie at Philadelphia. Hans has led the National league six times, in 1900, 1903, 1904, 1906, 1907 and 1908. Before he entered the league he led the Atlantic league batters with an average of .379.

Ty Cobb has led the American league batters as often as the great Pirate has led the National. Cobb has batted better than .300 in each of the seven years he has been in the American league. He is a slightly built, nervous chap who probably will not last as long as the stolid, solid "Flying Dutchman."

COMPROMISE ON CLASS B LEAGUE

Youngstown and Erie May Yet Be Satisfied With Deal.

TO THINK IT OVER

Youngstown and Eerie may yet find it convenient and profitable to satisfy themselves with berths the proposed Interstate league if they can add two more cities and get the population up to Class B. The following from the Erie Dispatch shows the change of view:

"President O'Connor will get in communication with President Paul Powers and frame up a campaign to be waged before the national association in Milwaukee next week. If the Central league split is upheld by the ruling power in minor league baseball, a demand will be made to enlarge the territory now embraced by the proposed Interstate league so as to bring in two other cities and get within the Class B limits.

"The population in the cities of Erie, Youngstown, Canton, Akron, Wheeling and Zanesville is not quite 335,000, which is 65,000 short of the required mark. Zanesville, with its 35,000 or less peaceful souls, helps to keep the six clubs out of Class B. The other three towns concerned are accepting the Interstate league idea with much keenness, inasmuch as it is more in harmony with their treasuries than Class B with its increased expenses.

"However, the fight now on is not one in which Erie and Youngstown will get down on their knees and beg the "old guard" of the Central league to take them back. The real issue involved is whether or not fans of the two cities are to have Class B or C baseball. Both of these cities might be induced to swallow the salty dose handed them at Fort Wayne in the shape of Zanesville, etc., if two real towns could be added to the Interstate and thus obtain a Class B rating.

"We want Class B baseball next year," said President O'Connor last night. "Business men of the city have told me they will pledge their assistance to keep Erie where she belongs. Mr. Powers and myself intend to fight hard, for both cities have graduated from Class C baseball.

"It is interesting to note that, while Erie and Youngstown are registering a vehement kick, the 'old guard' press is taking the 'freeze-out' as a matter of course, apparently well satisfied that the two clubs which so completely upset the dope in the Central league last year have been relegated to the scrap heap."

ICE CREAM CAUSES DEATH.

Many Who Partook at Church Social are Seriously Ill.

Lafayette, nId., Nov. 5.—As the result of eating ice cream at a church social at Taylor's Station, Georgia Spence, 12 years old, is dead and several other people who attended the social are quite sick. A post-mortem was held on the body of the Spence girl and Coroner Van-Reed says that death was caused by ptomaine poisoning. The Spence girl died after an illness of a few hours.

WILL LEAVE ON SATURDAY.

Louis Heilbroner, president-elect of the Central league, will leave for Chicago on Saturday and will go to Milwaukee Sunday for the meeting of the national association on Tuesday.

CANDY FIVE PUT UP HARD BATTLE

Champs Were in Form and Sander Hung Up Big Mark for League.

METS WIN TWO GAMES

In the Fort Wayne Bowling association games the He-Mi-La five put up a stiff battle against the champion Germanias and in the second game gave them a run for the money but fell short forty pins in spite of tabbing a total better than 900. Ot Sander started with 246 and had a tumble in his second game but registered 237 in his final effort for an average of 220 1-3, the best of the season.

Fred Schwartz chased him in the first and second games but fell short in the third and lost the average although he shot better than a double. Stang got a bad start and this handicapped him and prevented him getting much out of two doubles that he rolled in the second and third. Beckes was the runner up.

In the postponed series the Berry Buffet five crowded its pins into the second game and won it but lost the contest to the Metropolitans. Knoll got 214 and this gave him the average while Haas led the winners. The scores:

CUTS VEINS; TURNS ON GAS.

Prominent New York Woman Found Nearly Dead by Husband.

New York, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Frederick B. Newell was found by her husband last night in their richly furnished home nearly dead from bleeding throat and wrists and from inhaling gas. She had attempted suicide, and at the hospital to which she was removed it was said there was little chance of her recovery. Before her marriage ten years ago she was Louise Amorey, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and her family is socially prominent. Her husband, who is resident manager of the Birmingham Rail and Locomotive company, said that his wife had been ill and depressed for some time.

THEY WED AND THEN WENT TO WAR TOGETHER.

LUCILE HARPENDING.

ALEXANDER PAVELLAS.

When Alexander Pavellas, editor and prominent member of the San Francisco Greek colony, left for the Balkan battle line to avenge the death of a brother killed in a former war with the Turks and to help liberate his people from the barbarities of the Ottoman, Miss Lucille Harpending, poet and playwright, of Fruitvale, who became his wife a few days before his departure for the front, went with him to spend her honeymoon on the battlefield. She will be a Red Cross nurse, as are so many other wives of Greey reservists.

The daughter of a civil war veteran, Miss Harpendinger didn't burst into tears or swoon when her lover told her that he must answer the call of his country.

"I will go with you," she said almost gaily. "I have been so anxious all my life to see a real battle, and now I will have a chance.

"We can spend our honeymoon between fights. That will be better than mother's—she was left at home alone when daddy went marching off to war in '61."

Miss Harpending is 21 years old and has achieved an enviable reputation as a writer. Pavellas is well known throughout the west as the editor of the Greek paper "Eirenikos," which he established shortly after the fire.

Three of his brothers engaged in the battle with the Turks in 1886. Two returned and fought again in the war with the Turks in 1897. And one is already at the front in the present war.

"A race which kills christians with as little compunction as chickens has no place in Europe," says Pavellas. "We must drive them out."

"Yes, WE must," responded his wife-to-be.

Second Tragedy in the Life of Millionaire Who Killed a Woman Four Years Ago.

MRS. JEAN M'COMAS.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 5.—When Mrs. Jean Wiswell McComas, the 26-year-old wife of W. P. McComas, millionaire mining man of Mexico, shot herself through the head, following a quarrel with her husband, it was the third tragedy in fifteen years of his life.

McComas is known throughout the southwest and Mexico as "Bill" McComas. Some fifteen years ago his mother, father and brother were murdered by Apache Indians in Arizona. Four years ago McComas shot and killed Mrs. Charlotte Noyes, a widow, in Los Angeles, and after a sensational trial the jury disagreed and McComas was freed.

According to statements, McComas and Mrs. Noyes were trying to beat the races at "Lucky" Baldwin's Santa Anita racetrack. She was wealthy. One evening they quarreled and she, McComas stated, threw sulphuric acid in his face while he was visiting her at her apartments. McComas pulled his revolver and killed her. He carries the marks today where the powerful acid bit into his flesh.

For a time McComas was detained at the city prison in San Francisco, while the police investigated the alleged attempted suicide of Mrs. McComas, but ultimately he was released after it had been decided that Mrs. McComas did the shooting. Mrs. McComas will probably recover.

W. P. M'COMAS.

EMINENT MUSICIAN DEAD.

Sigfreid Behrens Passes Away at Philadelphia at 72.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—Sigfreid Behrens, dean of Philadelphia musicians, and prominently connected in past years with many operatic ventures, died at his home here today. He was 72 years old. In 1867 he began traveling with the Max Strakosch-Adelina Patti concert company. Later he began at Chicago his career as an operatic conductor with the Caroline Richings opera company, and continued when that organization combined with the Parepa Rosa company. He organized a company headed by Christine Nielssen, Patti and Victor Maurel, which sang "Aida" in this country for the first time.

Mr. Behrens served as local manager for the Metropolitan opera company.

HARDSHIPS AND MANY ROMANCES

Bureau Cares for Effects of Americans Who Die Abroad.

IT IS A WEIRD TASK

Washington, Nov. 5.—A special bureau to take charge of the effects of unidentified Americans who die in other countries is maintained by the state department. It has come to be known as "the division of dead men's shoes."

What tales of sufferings and hardships, what possible romances, what stories of ruined lives, could be told if those large and small bundles catalogued on the shelves had the power of speech! Possibly a story of years of joy and happiness spent in some foreign land would crop out now and then. Here a bundle of overalls and a blue working shirt, from far off Brazil; there a small box containing a jeweled necklace and some small trinkets, from Italy; in the corner, a pick and shovel from a Mexican mining camp; on a top shelf, a packet of real estate papers, some confederate "shin plasters" and a few pieces of chalk. On the wall over there is a sword and a revolver. The most unimaginative person can conjure up interesting and startling adventures in the division of dead men's shoes.

Consuls Aid in Work.

Dr. Charles M. Butler, chief clerk, consular and diplomatic division, department of state, is the custodian. The division itself comprises only the barest scattering of employes, but these are augmented by the entire consular service of the United States. Every consul, every vice-consul, every consular agent—in short, every foreign stationed member of the diplomatic service—is working for the division all the time.

When an American dies in a foreign land, the diplomatic representative immediately makes an investigation. It is a notable fact that many tourists set out to see the world alone. Hundreds upon hundreds of Americans become soldiers of fortune and drift to the most out of the way corners of the earth. The agent first searches for letters or documents giving possible clews to relatives. A large proportion of these wanderers leave no evidence of former connections. Many have traveled under assumed names, for good and sufficient reasons of their own. Their effects are carefully bundled up and sent to the division in Washington. A detailed report accompanies the package. It is filed away and the package goes to the uncanny storeroom. There the articles remain until claimed—about one in every one hundred instances—or, as is more often the case, until the available space becomes cramped. Then, after a brief period of advertising, they are sold at public auction and the work of collecting begins all over again. These sales occur about once in every two or three years.

"We dare not advertise descriptions of any effects; that would give crooks a chance to patch up relationships," says Dr. Butler. "Later a bona fide relative would come along and put in a claim and would have a good damage suit against the government. A 25-cent knife, of no use to you or me, would be invaluable to the mother who gave it to her son who disappeared years ago."

One package contains the not very valuable estate of an old confederate veteran, who, disappointed at the outcome of the war, went into exile in Rio de Janeiro. Another, that of "el Senor Smee-eth," who suddenly appeared in a small Spanish town, spent his money there lavishly for several years and then committed suicide. He left three large silver dollars, a few bronze 2-cent pieces, a diamond scarppin, a pair of gold cuff buttons and a silver-handled pocket knife. What drove him to Spain will probably always remain a mystery.

ARREST FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

San Francisco Man Wanted to Be Moving Picture Magnate.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—An ambition to become the moving picture magnate of the Pacific coast is alleged to have led Wallace J. Poland, until three weeks ago cashier of the San Francisco office of the International Harvester company, to embezzle $84,000 of his employers' money. Judge J. M. Greene, attorney for the Harvester company, caused Poland's arrest yesterday on the charge of having embezzled $1,500 on October 3. Judge Greene said Poland had admitted this peculation and that admission of other thefts brought the total up to $84,000. Poland is held at the city prison in default of $50,000 bail. According to Judge Greene, Poland invested money in a number of moving picture houses and in a San Francisco saloon, which was elaborately fitted up.

"There is no evidence of Poland's money having been spent in riotous living," said Greene. "Poland has lived extravagantly, but generally it appears to be a case of desiring to attain sudden riches. He sought to become a moving picture magnate."

hesitate to predict. Beside the 29 presidential electors to which the state is entitled Illinois today is voting for state officers, including over 27 members of congress, 25 members of the state senate and 153 members of the state house of representatives.

The election of a number of progressive members of the legislature with the balance close betwen democrats and republicans might mean a deadlock in the house over its organization and a deadlock over the election of two United States senators. More than 5,000 men, police, private detectives and volunteer watchers, are on guard at the polls in the city of Chicago. Voting machines are in use in 459 precincts. Chief clerk of the board of election commissioners has announced that today's vote probably would be the largest ever cast in chicago. He estimates that it will be within 5 per cent of the total registration, which is 444,915 this year.

Throughout Illinois fine weather and a heavy vote formed the rule. Notwithstanding the sharpness of the fight no serious disorder had been reported anywhere in the state up to noon.

Scratching and ballot splitting developed to an extraordinary extent. So much was this the case that at many polling places in Chicago nine-tenths of the voters rejected voting machines and insisted on paper ballots as being easier and safer to change from straight tickets.

Signs of the unusual earnestness prevailing came in dispatches telling of the crush at some precincts. In Aurora this was so great that doors and windows of the polling booths were pushed in. Elsewhere diphtheria at a house where a ballot box had been taken did not prevent voting. The election paraphernalia was fumigated, and the balloting proceeded.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 5.—Bright skies and cool weather today brought out a heavy early vote. Former Speaker Cannon has made a vigorous campaign, but the indications are that owing to the fact that both progressives and democrats have candidates opposing him, the result will be closer than in former years.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 5.—Interest in this section of the state centered in the fight for re-election by Congressman Wm. B. McKinley, one of President Taft's chief lieutenants. The contest against McKinley assumed in many places such proportions as to overshadow even the presidential struggle.

IN NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 5.—All records for early and heavy voting appeared likely to be broken in New York state today and reports from nearly every county indicated that record polls would be made. There was generally fair weather in all parts of the state, and in both the city and country districts voters went early to the polls. There were no reports of disorders, and while the voting in many districts was the heaviest in years, there was little trouble in recording ballots. The keenest interest in both the national state elections was observed in all counties and the political leaders in Rochester said the early balloting there indicated that the full registered vote would be cast by nightfall. At Albany and in many of the Buffalo precincts more than one-third of the registration had been polled before 9 o'clock.

A record vote is expected in New York city. The weather is clear and cool throughout the state. The total registration in this city is over 700,000 and a vote of well over 650,000 is predicted. A vote of about 1,200,000 is expected in the state outside of New York city. The vote four years ago in the city and state was 1,038,000. In New York city the polls opened at 6 a. m. and will close at 5 p. m. It is predicted that the vote of the city and state for president, as well as governor, will be known comparatively early, probably by 9 o'clock this evening.

The various national and state headquarters are practically deserted today and will be until this evening, when they will again be opened up for the receiving of returns.

IN NEBRASKA.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 5.—When the polls opened here at 8 o'clock a line of voters was waiting to cast ballots in each of the precincts. While the sky was overcast, indications were that there would be no rain. Reports from other points in the state indicate a record-breaking vote.

IN MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 5.—A heavy vote is expected in this city. Outside of the national election great interest centers in the contest for a mayor and a full city ticket.

IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 5.—Every man in Des Moines who gets within the poling place before the hour of closing has a right to vote. This was the final instruction of County Auditor Fraze to the election judges here today. Fear had been expressed that men would be disfranchised in the larger precincts, especially in the rush of the closing hours. There was a heavy early morning vote.

Men were waiting at most of the polling places when they opened at 7 o'clock. Clear weather is expected to bring out a large vote in the Iowa towns. The polls close at 7 p. m.

IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 5.—For the first time in the history of West Virginia hundreds of women appeared at polling places urging voters to support the prohibitory amendment which is dividing attention with the national tickets. Prayer meetings are being held in all sections. Political managers unite in the prediction that the largest vote ever cast in the state is being polled.

IN MISSISSIPPI.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 5.—Democratic leaders estimate that not more than 150,000 votes will be cast in Mississippi today and that the democratic vote will be in excess of 100,000.

IN TENNESSEE.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Early reports from Tennessee points indicate a heavy vote is being cast. The tickets are long and the count will be tedious. The gubernatorial race between Gov. Hooper, republican, backed by independent democrats, and McMillan, democrat, overshadowed everything else.

IN FLORIDA.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 5.—Perfect weather is expected to bring out a heavy vote today. Despite the trolley strike here, interest in the election is keen and there was considerable early voting.

IN NEW JERSEY.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 5.—Voters were awaiting in line for polling places to open in many towns and cities in New Jersey this morning and reports from throughout the state indicated an unusually heavy vote during the forenoon. A general misconception of the new election law, which led citizens to neglect to register in October after having voted at the September primaries, has resulted in the disfranchisement of probably 7,000 residents of Hudson county alone. The loss will affect more democrats than republicans because comparatively few of the latter participated in the September primaries.

IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 5.—Massachusetts' army of voters began its march to the polls today before the rising of the sun. The registration figures showed an enrollment of 604,000 or forty thousand more voters than ever before recorded. A vote exceeding half a million was indicated by the early balloting and the mildness of the day, which opened with a blue sky.

IN MAINE.

Portland, Me., Nov. 5.—With favorable weather conditions prevailing, Maine was expected today to cast its greatest vote in a presidential year. Presidential electors only were to be voted upon.

IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 5.—A five-cornered gubernatorial contest, pronounced in the presidential campaign and practically perfect weather was a combination which promised a vote above normal in New Hampshire today.

IN VERMONT.

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 5.—A small vote for presidential election was the prospect in Vermont when the polls opened today, despite a complete lack of weather handicap. None of the parties had made a vigorous campaign.

IN RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 5.—Party managers expected that the vigorous campaigns which have been waged would be reflected today in an unusually large vote. The weather was fine.

IN MICHIGAN.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 5.—Reports from throughout the state during the forenoon indicated that a record-breaking vote was being cast everywhere. The national, state and congressional tickets all attracted equal interest and early reports were to the effect that "split tickets" were very common.

IN OHIO.

Cincinnati, Nov. 5.—Reports from all the principal cities of the state before noon indicated that a record vote was being cast. A ruling of the state election board that each ballot must be counted complete, down to the most minor county official, together with the fact that the county precincts will remain open until 6 o'clock gave promise that it would be late before the full count was known.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 5.—Early reports today were that a heavy vote was being polled with much scratching. Little interest has been displayed here in ward meetings during the campaign, but general political interest has been intense. Weather is fair.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 5.—Reports from all over the city indicated a heavy vote today. The morning was bright and clear and the voters turned out early.

IN WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 5.—Voting in Milwaukee began with a rush at 6 a. m., the labor vote being heavy. The contest in this county is keen between the fusion and socialist county and congressional tickets, also for gubernatorial honors between McGovern, republican and Karel, democrat. The weather early was clear and cool.

Cracksmen Clean Up Postoffice in Indiana Town.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Nov. 5.—Cracksmen broke the safe in the Mt. Vernon postoffice early this morning, getting $3,000 in stamps and $90 in cash and overlooked $200 more in cash. It is believed the thieves escaped in an automobile stolen from George Frick. There are no clews

What Women Use to Be Beautiful

Those who can find nothing that will protect their tender skin from the cold and wind should try this and they will no longer suffer from winter complexion upsets: Dissolve four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint witch hazel (or hot water,) and add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Apply this, with the palm of the hand, to the face, neck and forearms in the morning and it will not rub off or show like powder. It is a true complexion-beautifier, for it restores and preserves the soft and rosy color of youth. This inexpensive lotion is especially fine for those who have dark, sallow or oily skins.

"Shampoo" is a word of Hindoo origin and means "to lather, rub and wash the head." When using canthrox for shampooing, dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water; pour on the head a little at a time and rub well—just as you would with an ordinary shampoo; then rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly with warm water. Canthrox makes an abundance of lather and will remove that fine scurf of which many complain, for it is nothing more nor less than dandruff. Don't use soap when shampooing, for it leaves the scalp hot and hard and causes streaks in the hair when drying. When you use canthrox the hair dries quickly and is soft, bright, fluffy and not streaky.—Adv.

INDIANA VOTES AT LIVELY CLIP

Heavy Polling is Reported from Every Section of the State.

WITH FINE WEATHER

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 5.—Long lines of voters greeted the opening of the polls here this morning. Early indications were for a heavy vote. The skies were overcast. After the early rush, voting slowed down considerably in this city.

A heavy vote here and throughout the state is reported. The polling places are being guarded by local police and detectives from a Chicago agency to prevent fraud or discover basis for a protest.

Voting machines are in use in 14 of the 92 counties of the state. The polls close at 6 o'clock. The sun came out from behind the clouds several times during the morning.

At Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 5.—Election day dawned cloudy and airish with the suspicion of rain. The first hour's polling saw an average of a vote a minute, especially in the business men's precints. A heavy vote was looked for. Special attention was given to the operation of the new registration law and but few complications were expected.

At South Bend.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 5.—With fair, cool weather prevailing the early voting here today was unprecedented heavy and the indications were that a record vote would be cast in St. Joseph county. Voting machines were used here today for the first time in a general election and voting was proceeding with great rapidity.

At Lafayette.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 5.—Ideal election weather prevailed here today. There was a steady stream of voters to the polls and indications this morning were that a record-breaking vote would be cast. All parties had workers at the polling places.

At Terre Haute.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 5.—With the weather clear and warm there was every indication that a record vote would be cast throughout the city and county with machines in use in all the city precincts the vote was cast rapidly and the early morning vote was heavy.

MAY WEAR FANCY WAISTCOATS.

Quakers Talk of Bringing Back Splash of Color.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 5.—Philadelphia experts say there is just a "feeling" for the beautiful fancy waistcoats that were so often a part of men's apparel in day's gone by. It will be remembered how gradually but certainly the fancy vest made its exodus. Some merchant tailors failed to receive a single order for them this year.

Because of the increasing popularity of the low-cut coat the re-entrance of this feature of a man's dress into the changing world of fashion is predicted. Only in a few cases, however, are the flashy fancy buttons to be worn. Some of the buttons will be to a slight extent decorative. In France the jewelers' shops containd amazing jeweled buttons, but this sort will not become generally popular among the best-dressed Quakers.

CIGARETTES WILL COST MORE.

War to Be Hardship on Users of Turkish Tobacco.

London, Nov. 5.—Inveterate smokers of Turkish cigarettes, while serenely indifferent to the outcome of the Balkan war, are viewing the prospects of an immediate rise in the price of their favorite weed with a food deal of disfavor.

Despite the fact that the bulk of Turkish tobacco is exported from Asia Minor and comes through Greek channels, and, therefore, the Greeks are unlikely to interfere with the process of the industry, a rigorous conscription enforced by Turkey will cause a serious interruption in gathering the crops.

POTATOES ARE FOOT LONG.

Record Spuds Grown in Hood River Valley.

Hood River, Ore., Nov. 5.—The record for potato production in Hood River valley is reported by J. R. Steele.

Last year he planted an acre that had been in alfalfa for ten years in Early Rose and Garfield varieties. They were irrigated twice. When he started to dig them he found the hills had run together so that each row was one continuous line of solid spuds.

Many of the plants had enough on them to fill a five-gallon can. Most of the spuds are a foot long and some weigh four pounds each.

The acre yielded 700 sacks, or 1,400 bushels. Mr. Steele also raised a cabbage weighing twenty-eight pounds this summer.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. BETTING ODDS ALL ON WILSON

Wall Street Sees Nothing But a Democratic Victory.

MIXED AT CHICAGO

New York, Nov. 5.—Among the election wagers placed in Wall street yesterday was one of $20,000 to $1,000 that President Taft would not be re-elected. The betting was exceedingly active, between $50,000 and $75,000 being placed at various odds. Wilson was decidedly the favorite at 6 and 7 to 1. There was plenty of money against Taft at 15-to-1 odds that attracted many Taft takers for both large and small sums. The betting made Roosevelt a 1-to-5 shot.

One bet of $2,000 to $1,000 was recorded that Roosevelt would not get eight states, another of $1,000 even that Taft would beat Roosevelt and one of $1,000 even that Roosevelt would run ahead of Taft in the popular vote.

Betting men in the financial district say that this has been the quietest election, from a betting standpoint, that they have ever known. Four years ago, it is estimated, there was nearly $750,000 staked on the result, while this year it is doubtful if the total amount will reach $150,000.

Gamblers Are Shy.

One of the reasons for this is that the laws now in force make it hard and rather dangerous for a man to back his choice with money, and another reason is that the odds have scared off a lot of people who would otherwise have wagered. Another feature of the speculation has been the attitude of Lloyd's, which in former years has played an important part in the pre-election betting. This year, directly after the democratic convention, the great London association started to write policies against the success of various candidates, but there was so little business in sight that this has been practically abandoned. In fact, a canvass of insurance brokers who usually do considerable business of this sort brought out the information that they had not written policies aggregating more than $50,000.

On the curb betting has been carried on on a small scale and the majority of bets have not been for more than $100. In the betting in the gubernatorial contest the final odds were Sulzer, democratic, 2½ to 2; Straus, progressive, 1 to 3, and Hedges, republican, 1 to 4.

CHICAGO MIXES ODDS.

Wilson and Deneen Favorites, With T. R. Close Second.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Betting odds last night favored the democratic national ticket and the republican state ticket to carry Illinois, with the progressive national ticket a close second to the democratic ticket.

Roy O. West, republican state chairman, forecasted that President Taft and Governor Deneen would carry the state by 125,000.

Arthur W. Charles, democratic state chairman, announced that Wilson and Edward F. Dunne, democratic candidate for governor, would win by a big plurality. He also said the democrats would elect eighteen of the twenty-five representatives and two congressmen at large to be elected.

Chauncey Dewey, progressive state chairman, predicted a plurality of 150,000 for Roosevelt and Frank H. Funk, progressive candidate for governor.

Indications pointed to a heavy socialist vote in Chicago and several other cities.

WISDOM AND COUGH SYRUP

Tells How to Make Mentho-Laxene Cold, Catarrh and Cough Remedy—Shows How to Save More Than Two Dollars.

Every Family Profit by This and Run No Risk, for Every Bottle is Guaranteed Effective and Pure, Too.

People who've "barrels of money" probably won't appreciate this advice.

This is for the reader who knows the value of every five-cent piece, and usually it saves from 40 to 100 five-cent pieces for those who are informed. Buying medicine in dribs costs more than making a big supply yourself. Buying ordinary patent medicines means that you pay too much for syrups, corks, bottles, labels, cartons, etc. For instance, if you buy a 25-cent bottle of cough medicine, it contains about two ounces, four-fifths of which is syrup—and for 25 cents you can make one-half gallon of syrup.

By making Mentho-Laxene medicine at home you save lots of money on syrup alone, and besides you know it's pure and quickly effective. Let us prove then that the best and cheapest way to cure coughs, colds, catarrh and to prevent pneumonia, diphtheria, la grippe, is to make this fine big supply of medicine by mixing one-half pint of boiling water with a pint of granulated sugar. Then buy the pure concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene (a 2½ oz. bottle) empty it into a pint bottle or jar and fill it up with the syrup. Directions with each bottle tells how to make and take, while the manufacturers guarantee to refund money to any dissatisfied purchaser. You run no risk and will have on hand a medicine which has never been equalled for colds, coughs, bronchitis, catarrh, hoarseness, etc. Its tonic laxative action puts the entire system on a healthy basis and chronic disease and consumption are avoided.—Adv.

HOME AND PASTORATE GONE, FOR LOVE, HE POLISHES FLOORS TO LIVE.

MRS. LULU SMITH.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 5.—F. S. A. Jensen is a finisher of hardwood floors.

Only a few days ago he was Rev. F. S. A. Jensen, pastor of the Baptist church of Morgan Hill, near San Jose, Cal.

He has given up a home, abandoned the ministry and his pastorate for the love of Mrs. Lulu Smith, one of his flock.

He seeks no justification, offers no excuse. He has broken one of the cardinal principles of Mosiac and secular law. He doesn't dodge or deny it. He talks little, and polishes floors while he waits for a year and three months to until his decree will be complete and he can marry Mrs. Smith, who has just been divorced from a wealthy rancher, because of her relations with the minister.

Mrs. Smith has given up her luxurious home and her two sons, 14 and 16 years, and is supporting herself as a clerk in a department store. She lives in one small room in a lodging house, while she, too, is waiting.

The story of Jensen and Mrs. Smith reads, in papers, like the story of Jere Knode Cooke, the Long Island clergyman who eloped with Floretta Whalley and went to San Francisco to earn a living.

The affection between Mrs. Smith and the pastor began last April. Both say it was because they were unhappy at home. Mrs. Smith had previously been divorced, but was persuaded by friends to return to her husband. But happiness, she says, did not return.

Jensen, who was married 20 years ago, had worked his way through school and had learned the trade of a floor-finisher. No children came to the Jensen home. For many years, he says, there was no love between his wife and himself.

For months Jensen and Mrs. Smith kept their secret. Finally there was gossip. When it became general, Jensen resigned. Mrs. Smith told her husband she was the blame, consented to an unconditional divorce, and left her home.

"I have given up the ministry," says Jensen, "because I did not want to hurt the work. I have done wrong, and I have not denied it. I have not given up my religion nor my faith. It was the man, not the minister, who fell. Except for the one fault, we have lived in full observance of the laws of man and God. Mrs. Smith is a good woman. We are going to fight our way out, but we do not ask the world to excuse us."

"There is more than one side to the story," says Mrs. Smith. "I do not expect the world to listen to it. But my two boys know the other side and believe in me. That is all that makes my separation from them bearable.

"Happiness did not come after I returned to my husband after our first divorce. Mr. Jensen and I became friendly. He attracted me first because he was such a good pastor. He was unhappy in his home and I was unhappy in mine. Our common sorrow was what first drew us together. We found that friendship was ripening into love. I went to my husband and confessed to him, and consented to let him get a divorce. He promised that nothing would be made public. But he did not keep his promise. He gave out a letter from Mr. Jensen, which I had kept in my trunk and which showed our guilt. Perhaps that was necessary, in the divorce proceedings. I don't know."

Jensen's wife has returned to her home in Canada. A suit for divorce was filed by the minister several months ago.

SEERESS GUILTY OF SON'S DEATH

Chicago Jury Convicts Mrs. Lindloff on Charge of Murder.

SENTENCE 25 YEARS

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Louise Lindloff was found guilty last night of the murder of her son, Arthur, who was 15 years old. The jury which returned the verdict fixed her punishment at twenty-five years in the penitentiary.

Of the six white women tried in Cook county this year on charges of homicide Mrs. Lindloff is the only one convicted. At the state's attorney's office it was stated that is the only sensational murder case against a woman in Chicago where the indictment has been sustained.

The Lindloff jury arrived at a verdict after five hours and eight minutes of deliberation. At 8:56 o'clock the foreman knocked on the door and informed the bailiff who opened it they had agreed. Judge William Fenimore Cooper, called by Judge Thomas G. Windes to receive the verdict, hastily was summoned from the Newberry hotel.

Verdict Is Read.

After court was convened he arose and asked:

"Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?"

"We have," replied Foreman Felix Kalb, who handed a bundle of papers to the clerk, who read:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Louisa Lindloff——"

He paused a moment and Mrs. Lindloff, who sat with her eyes glued on his lips, held her breath.

"Guilty of murder as charged in the indictment."

When the clerk read the fatal word the woman dropped her eyes and collapsed in her chair. She did not weep and in a minute or so the only visible trace of emotion was the redness of her face.

The clerk completed reading the document:

"We fix her punishment at twenty-five years in the penitentiary."

Attorney George Remus immediately made a motion for a new trial. It will be argued on Nov. 16.

Asserts She Is Innocent.

Mrs. Lindloff walked away unsupported with her guard. But at the elevator in the rear of the court room the iron nerve she has shown during the trial failed her. She fainted, falling across a chair. It was five minutes before she could be revived.

Before her collapse she again asserted she was innocent.

"I'm innocent, and I will be vindicated in my next trial," she said in a low voice. "I will be acquitted, for the spirits have told me. They have never failed me.

"A long time ago a medium told me I would be tried for murder. In my dreams the spirits have taken me by the hand and led me out of the jail. I did not poison my son or anybody else. I am a victim of public opinion. The guilty ones who have been tried before me have been freed and there has been so much fuss about their acquittals that I have been taken as an example. But I will soon be free.

"In my dreams my own son has come and comforted me. He never would come back if I had done this thing."

After the newspaper man had left her, Mrs. Lindloff was assited to the county jail, where she was taken to the hospital ward and medical treatment administered. Her heart was affected, but her physical condition was not considered serious.

Seven Ballots Taken.

The jury went out at 3:48 o'clock and at 8:56 o'clock they announced they had decided on the fate of the prisoner.

Seven ballots were taken. The jurymen had retired about an hour before the first ballot was taken. They stood 8 to 4 for conviction, it is said. After thirty-five minutes a second ballot was taken, it is said, which showed two more were convinced Mrs. Lindloff was guilty. The ten men stood pat and argued with the other two for about twenty minutes, when they balloted again. On the third ballot, it is reported, they stood 11 to 1 for conviction. In ten minutes more the other juror was induced to change his mind. They stood unanimous for conviction before they were taken to the Alexander hotel for dinner.

The first ballot to fix the punishment of the murderess showed they stood six for fourteen years, two for twenty years, two for twenty-five years and two for life imprisonment. On the next ballot there were eleven for twenty-five years and one for life imprisonment. On the seventh and last ballot they all stood for twenty-five years.

Accused of Using Poison.

Mrs. Lindloff was accused of killing her son by placing arsenic in his food. He was taken ill on June 2 and died eleven days later at the University hospital.

The state introduced evidence in an effort to prove she poisoned six of her relatives for their insurance, which totaled about $8,000. These persons in the order of their deaths were: Julius Graunke, her first husband; John Otto Lindloff, brother of her second husband; Frieda Graunke, 18 years old, her daughter by her first husband; William Lindloff, her second husband; Alma Lindloff, 18 years old, her daughter; Arthur Lindloff, 15 years old, her son.

Poison experts testified they had found quantities of arsenic sufficient to kill in the bodies of these six.

Mrs. Lindloff is the sole survivor of her family. She is 42 years old and will be 67 years old when she serves her twenty-five years if she does not gain her freedom through the courts or state or by good behavior before her term ends.

PARCELS POST ORDERS.

Instructions From Postmaster General Are Sweeping in Nature.

Sweeping and emphatic orders relative to the parcels post system, which goes into effect January 1, 1913, have been received in Fort Wayne by Postmaster R. B. Hanna, in instructions from Postmaster Generad Frank H. Hitchcock. A copy of the instructions has been forwarded to every first class postoffice in the country.

The order declares that distinctive parcels post stamps must be used on all fourth class matter, beginning January 1 and that such matter bearing ordinary postage stamps will be treated as "held for postage."

Another clause is that parcels will be mailable only at postoffices, branch postoffices, lettered and local named stations and such numbered stations as may be designated by the postmaster.

FIRST WOMAN JUDGE HAD HARD TIME UPHOLDING COURT'S DIGNITY UNTIL SHE JAILED CITY MARSHAL FOR CONTEMPT.

She Wouldn't Want to Sentence a Man to Death or Life Imprisonment—"I'm Going to Stick to It," Declares Miss Clara Jess, Socialist Suffraget, and First Woman Judge.

CLARA A. JESS.

Clara Alice Jess, young and unmarried, is the first woman to hold a position of judge in any city in the United States.

Miss Jess isn't a lawyer; she has never passed an examination, but despite this lack of knowledge of legal technicalities, she's some judge, and anyone who doubts this statement has only to talk for a while with some of those who have been tangled up in Daly City's police court.

Daly City is a suburb of San Francisco. It isn't aristocratic and most of its residents work with their hands for a living, and work hard. Daly City is ruled by socialists. Six months ago, after her defeat for the office of treasurer, the trustees appointed Miss Jess recorder, which position is the same in Daly City as that of police judge in a larger town.

The first few sessions of Miss Jess' court were stormy, and the more Miss Jess did to quiet the storm the harder it blew. The men didn't take kindly to a woman judge, especially the marshal of the court. The marshal wanted to be prosecuting attorney. Miss Jess wouldn't let him. The marshal was a bachelor and a woman hater combined. One day Miss Jess told him to serve a warrant. He refused.

"You'll either serve it, pay a fine of $50, or else go to jail for contempt of court," thundered the young woman. The marshal laughed and then scowled at a deputy marshal whom Miss Jess ordered to arrest him. The deputy glanced at his six-foot-two chief and then suddenly resigned. Miss Jess located an Irish deputy who made up in nerve what he lacked in brawn.

"Are you going to pay that $50 fine?" Miss Jess asked the marshal.

"I am not," replied the officer.

"Take him to jail, then, and keep him there for one day," replied Miss Jess, and the Irishman took him to a nice little cell where he cooled his heels for eight hours and then entered suit against the young judgess (to coin a word) for $25,000 for false imprisonment. The suit is still pending.

"It's funny at times, but there is lots of tragedy running through the humor of a justice court," says Judge Clara Jess. "Sometimes the people don't take the court seriously; sometimes lawyers insist on calling me 'madam,' instead of 'your honor,' but I guess a woman pioneer must stand a lot of things."

Miss Jess doesn't believe in legal technicalities; she believes in getting at the truth of the matter to be decided and then giving her verdict. She's a socialist and a suffraget.

"Those who say politics will lower women forget that the greatest thing in the world is honest government; pots and pans lower a woman, not an interest in how their country shall be governed," is Miss Jess' answer to those who oppose woman suffrage, claiming it will lower woman.

"I don't think I would send a man to prison for life," answered Miss Jess. "It seems awful to think of shutting anyone up for years, or of sentencing to death, but I guess if the crime were great enough I could do that, too."

With the men opposing her and her court; with most everyone smiling at a woman on the bench, Miss Jess has had a hard time of it upholding the dignity of the recorder's office of Daly City, but the example of the town marshal who went to jail had a quieting effect upon those who laughed at her.

"I'll stick to it," declares Miss Jess, "and maybe some day I'll be a real judge. I think we ought to have women on the bench. They would do a real work.

"In conclusion I want to say that never will women make a greater mess of politics and government than have men."

And Miss Jess prepared to hear the case of a man who was accused of assault, blackening another man's eye during a heated argument over politics. It's the daily topic of conversation.

ASKED HIS WIFE TO KISS FRIENDS

Newly Made Bride Also Had to Serve Mixed Drinks.

TO ALL MALE COMERS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 5.—"All right, honey, I will," is the way Harlow B. Spencer, broker and sportsman, ended a telephone conversation with a woman in the presence of his wife on his wedding day, according to the testimony of the wife in her action for divorce.

The wife, who was Miss Olive Pilcher-South, said she answered the telephone and heard a woman's voice ask for her husband of a few hours. They had just reached the Planter's hotel after their elopement, and the wife said she could not understand how their address could have been known without the caller having received prior information.

Mrs. Spencer testified to other details of the "high life" she declared she led. Her husband, she said, had a case of whisky, one of brandy and one of gin sent to the house, and began to entertain friends. She declared he told many of his men friedns to drop in any time for a drink, and if he was not present his wife would make them a highball, fizz or cocktail. "I protested that I did not know how to mix drinks, and he said he would teach me," continued Mrs. Spencer. She described the lesson in fancy drink making.

Spencer's next departure to which she objected was his earnestly expressed desire that she kiss his male friends. She told how, when a man wanted to kiss her and she refused, Spencer apparently could not understand her mood, and said he didn't see why she wouldn't kiss him, meaning the friend, she explained.

She declared that although her husband said he had a business office she could not get him up in time to get to it, and every time she telephoned for him she was told that he was at the Planters' bar.

She tried to persuade him to take up life on a farm she owned, but he refused to leave the city. Mrs. Spencer asked alimony in gross of $100,000, or $15,000 a year. To support her claim the inventory of the estate of Spencer's father, amounting to about $600,000, was put in evidence.

The case was taken under advisement.

Are You One of Winter's Prisoners?

VERY LIKELY. The majority of people live in the land of winter-indoors, where the "beautiful snow" puts a stop to your golf, your boating and swimming, your walks and rides; shuts you out of the woods and the rose garden, and drives you back from the seashore. Worst of all, your car is going into winter storage. Do you know there is a section of your country, easily reached, where people spend their winter out-of-doors, where winter is only a name, where the only snow is on the mountain tops, seen through fragrant orange groves?

California's Winter Out-of-Doors

Will be the feature of a special Christmas edition de luxe of SUNSET, the Pacific Monthly. Sixteen full page pictures in full color, the green of the California hills in winter, the red of December roses, the crimson of the Christmas poinsettia, the scarlet of the climbing geranium, and the flame-color of poppies in January fields, the blue of shining sea and sky. The pictures and text will cover about all the things you are preparing to sacrifice to old King Cold and will show them in a novel setting.

POLO AT CORONADO, on the edge of San Diego Bay. Ponies wheeling on green turf, crack teams from England and Canada meeting American teams almost on the line of Old Mexico, giving the winter sport an international flavor.

DEL MAR, on the edge of the Pacific, where there is motoring over good roads among the Torrey pines, looking like a part of the Japanese Coast. Stratford Inn is equally foreign, suggesting a fine old English tavern.

LONG BEACH, where you can look across the glistening sand and see the little folks building forts, while their elders are splashing in the sunlit surf. This is the winter scene spread out before the porches of the Hotel Virginia.

SMILEY HEIGHTS, REDLANDS, where is located one of Nature's perfumery shops. You can stand up there on a winter's day amid a million blossoms and look across a valley of solid orange groves to the snow capped mountains.

PASO ROBLES, where you can enjoy your golf on the ever green hills, motor through the oak forests to the quaint Mission of San Miguel, and after it all, bathe in wonderful curative waters that the Indians knew.

SANTA CRUZ, where in front of the new Casa Del Rey (House of the King), you can bathe or swim or fish all the year round. Or you can take a motor run into the Santa Cruz Mountains, to picnic in the shade of trees 22 feet thick and 275 feet high.

SAN FRANCISCO is a small edition of New York, but it has no sleety pavements and icicle-pointed winds during its brilliant winter season. Instead, it has a park of a thousand acres of grass and flowers and automobile roads along the shores of the Pacific, and a zoo that feeds outdoors all winter. Its palatial hotels, known to every world traveler, the Palace with its historic associations, the St. Francis facing a square of palms and flowers, the Fairmont overlooking the city and incomparable bay, are planning enlargements to take care of the expected crowds at the Exposition in 1915.

THE GLENWOOD, RIVERSIDE, looks for all the world like a mission, with arches and belfry and cloisters. Lounging in the beautiful courts and gardens of this Mission Inn it seems strange that winter exists anywere.

PASADENA, motoring along the famous Foothill Boulevard, with snow-capped mountains on one side and orange groves on the other, starting from the beautiful Hotel Maryland, with its pergolas dripping with wistaria blossoms.

VENICE and SANTA MONICA, the Atlantic City of the Pacific Coast, just as gay in winter, as its Eastern sister in summer. There is less breeze to set the gay flags dancing, but the music and the fun are just as lively and the scene just as bright.

SANTA BARARA, where you can take your riding horse on the mountain trails and look down upon the beautiful old Mission, the green links at the country clubs, and the thronged verandas of the Potter by the shimmering blue Pacific.

DEL MONTE, MONTEREY, nestling in its hundred-acre park. You can motor over a forty-mile drive through a pine forest, over park roads, skirting a coast of dazzling color, where thousand-year-old cypresses look down the cliffs upon rainbow-tinted waters.

OAKLAND and BERKELEY, where you can motor for miles, past endless ranks of home gardens, the University of California and Oakland's unique water park, beyond which the brand new Oakland Hotel rise above a mass of foliage.

LOS ANGELES, the mecca of the winter tourist. In Westlake Park, in the depth of winter, that is when the grass is thick and deep and dotted with wild flowers, "the kiddies" are getting grass stains on their clothes, sailing boats or feeding waterfowl. Los Angeles is the fastest growing city in the world. You cannot recognize her from year to year. The Alexandria is building a new addition, making it the largest as well as one of the most luxurious hotels in the world. The Van Nuys is one of the hospital landmarks and a home place for hundreds of people who return to it yearly.

We want you to read this beautiful de luxe issue of SUNSET, and we will send it to you postage paid together with a beautifully illustrated booklet picturing and describing California's famous resorts, both for 15 cents in stamps.

For the same 15 cents we will be glad to give you any information you may desire on California's winter out-of-doors land, or any part of it. Today is the day! Fill out the coupon.

SIR TOM TALKS AMERICA'S CUP RACE WITH MRS. GIBSON.

(By Idah McGlone Gibson.)

I have discovered a very important secret in connection with the America's cup.

Here it is: The New York Yacht club practically avoids another race for the famous cup because it wants to discourage international marriages.

That's it, international marriages. Because the members know that if Sir Thomas Lipton lifts the cup he will immediately turn his attention to finding a wife, and as he is one of the most eligible bachelors in Great Britain he is sure to be gobbled up by an American girl.

It was Sir Thomas himself who, in effect, tipped me off to the secret. I wanted to see for myself what kind of person this great English-Irish yachtsman was and so I stepped right in on him while he was terribly busy having a good time at Chicago and began asking about his campaign for another great international yacht race.

Now here's Sir Thomas Lipton. He's suave and debonnair. His face is tanned, the skin ruddy and he has the "sailor man's" direct gaze. His mustache is white and carefully waxed. He has peculiar triangular eyebrows, and just below his lower lip is another triangular tuft of hair that looks just like as if, sometime, one of the eyebrows had carelessly dropped down, stopped just above his chin and stuck there.

"I have only two regrets in life," Sir Tom said to me, as a twinkle bobbed out of the tails of his eyes. "One is that I have never married and the other is that I have never been able to carry the queen's cup back to England.

"You see that I would not want to mortify my wife by drinking out of a saucer, and how can I do otherwise if I cannot lift the cup?"

Sir Thomas, being an Irishman, is not above a pun, a bit of blarney or stretching the truth a wee bit to make his point.

Between you and me, if the truth be told, he deems his greatest success in life his ability to keep out of the matrimonial noose.

He fairly flings the fact that he is a bachelor at you, if you are a woman, and he does it with a grace and ease of long practice in much the same way that a picadore shakes the red scarf in the bull ring, and he has the same devil-may-care-come-on-I-dare-you smile as he does it.

With Sir Thomas on his present trip is Col. Duncan Neill, one of the best known yachtsmen in England, who, Sir Thomas says, as his white mustache raises in a quizical smile, "is a bachelor like myself." Then he adds in an aside: "He has come over here thinking that he will find a wife in America."

"But who doesn't stand a dog's chance," interrupts Col. Neill, "as long as Sir Thomas is by."

But I was determined to have Sir Tom talk about America's cup and another race, and finally he said:

"Yachting is at a pretty low ebb in England just now because of the passion with which the English have taken up motoring. Our beautiful country and its splendid roads are always smiling an invitation.

SNAPSHOT PHOTOGRAPH OF IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON AND SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

"Germany, on the other hand, has forged ahead in the same degree that England has fallen behind. This is because of the unflagging interest of the emperor, who at Kiel last year personally raced his yacht, the Meteor, for ten days straight, and who was most gracious in his welcome to each of the owners of the 120 racing boats entered. Each evening during the races the emperor of Germany could be seen sitting at a table in one of the beer gardens making friends for yachting and incidentally for his navy."

Sir Tom said he thought America the greatest sporting country on earth and commented on the fact that we have captured the most international trophies. He says, however, that "nothing will give the impetus to yachting that it should have, both in the United States and in England, as will another contest between them for the most coveted trophy in the world, the America's cup.

I think that Sir Thomas believes that before long the New York Yacht club will come down off its high horse and change the rules so that a race can be held. When I asked him if he thought he would be able to arrange a race while he is over here he answered, "Yes, I think so," and then for fear I might think that official, he added: "It seems to be in the air, and I certainly would like a run for my money."

Whatever may be the chances for Sir Thomas getting a run for his money in American waters, he certainly gets it in American society. No man who comes to these shores is feted and lionized more by American women, from matrons to debutantes, than this genial Irishman.

TESTS CONFIRM DANGER OF FLIES

Infantile Paralysis Communicated by Insects It is Said.

MONKEYS INFECTED

Washington, Nov. 5.—Surgeon John F. Anderson and Past Assistant Surgeon Wade H. Frost, of the United States public health service, have completed experiments which confirm the contention of Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, of the Harvard medical school, that infantile paralysis is commuicated by the stable fly.

At the international congress of hygiene and demography here last month Dr. Rosenau described his experiments. He infected several monkeys with infantile paralysis, and exposed them daily from the time of inoculation till death to the bites of several hundred stable flies.

Twelve other monkeys were then exposed to the bites of these flies. At the time that Dr. Rosenau made his announcement six of the twelve had developed symptoms characteristic of infantile paralysis. Of the six two died, three were paralyzed and one recovered. In the cord of one of the monkeys were found the characteristic leisons of infantile paralysis. The cord of the other dead monkey showed changes less characteristic of the disease. At the time of the announcement a sufficient interval had not elapsed to determine the result of the attempt to transmit the infection of other monkeys by inoculation with the cord of one of the two that had died.

Dr. Anderson and Dr. Frost sought to repeat the conditions of Dr. Rosenau's experiments.

Their report, made public today, states that on October 3 monkey No. 242 was inoculated with an emulsion of the cord of the monkey which died of infantile paralysis. Until its death from this disease, on October 8, the animal was exposed for two hours daily to the bites of three hundred stable flies, collected in Washington. Another monkey similarly inoculated on October 5 was, beginning October 7, exposed daily to the bites of the same flies.

Beginning October 4 two other monkeys were exposed daily for about two hours to the bites of these same flies, and, beginning October 5, a third new monkey was similarly exposed. All three subsequently developed symptoms of infantile paralysis. An autopsy revealed in one tubercles in the lungs, liver and spleen. In another, which was chloroformed after being almost completely paralyzed, tubercles were found similarly located, but apparently not sufficient to have been the cause of death. The remaining monkey, after partial paralysis, was chloroformed. The internal organs appeared normal except the spinal cord, which was edematous, the gray matter being congested.

Dr. Anderson and Dr. Frost say in conclusion: "These results would seem to demonstrate conclusively that poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) may be transmitted to monkeys through the agency of the stable fly. It remains for further work to decide whether this is the usual or the only method of transmission."

MAN RUNS AMUCK IN A CITY STORE

Bites Girl on the Ankle and Causes a Wild Panic.

HE THEN ESCAPES

Kansas City, Nov. 5.—A man, with the glaring eyes of a maniac, caused a panic among the hundreds of women shoppers in the John Taylor dry goods store, 1034 Main street. Passing Mrs. Mae Smith, a clerk in the jewelry department, he brushed against her. A moment later he was on his hands and knees on the floor. Rushing toward Mrs. Smith, he seized her left ankle and began biting it. Screaming, she broke away. The crazed man then seized another girl clerk standing near and attempted to bite her on the arms and back.

The cry of "A crazy man!" was echoed through the main floor of the building, sending terror to the hearts of the women shoppers. Many of them gave vent to their feelings in screams; some clasped other women in their arms; some sought hiding places, while many saleswomen climbed on the counters for safety. A swarm of clerks and floorwalkers rushed to the assistance of the two clerks who had been attacked. In the excitement that followed the maniac walked through the store and passed out the Baltimore avenue exit. He has not been found.

Noticed His Peculiar Action.

Mrs. Smith had stepped from her place at the jewelry counter to the drinking fountain and was standing when the man brushed against her. A customer called her attention to the peculiar action of the man as he dropped to the floor on his hands and knees. The customer stepped back out of his way and Mrs. Smith laughingly remarked, "He has lost something." Then the man grabbed her. She fought, kicked and shoved until she had freed herself and then ran behind her counter.

The man turned and caught Miss Vida Tomlinson, 16 years old, 432 Troupe avenue, on the Kansas side, also a clerk in the jewelry department. The crowd gathered around them. Both girls were hysterical and screaming. Mrs. Smith turned to see where her assailant had gone. He was still standing near.

"I will never forget the look in his eyes," Mrs. Smith said last night. "He stood there glaring and leering at me. All the time I was pointing to the man and crying, 'There, there,' but everybody seemed so excited they could not understand and the man walked away."

Man's Teeth Weren't Very Sharp.

Mrs. Smith was bruised on the left ankle. Dr. A. L. Goodwin, 1114 Troost avenue, said the injury would not be dangerous.

"I never saw the man before he grabbed me," Miss Tomlinson said. "I jerked away and he held my apron string, tearing the apron off."

Mrs. Smith is the wife of R. L. Smith, a checker for the Montgomery Ward company, and lives at 1114 Troost avenue. Two months ago Mrs. Smith suffered a severe back sprain from a fall at the store.

The assailant wore a neat fitting blue suit and a brown telescope hat. He weighed about 135 pounds, was smoothly shaven, about five and a half feet tall and about 30 years old. The police on every beat have been furnished with his description and are looking for him.

PLAIN WOMEN OF THE BALKANS—BY A WOMAN WHO LIVES AMONG THEM.

Wonderfully Colored Oriental Garb Gladdens the Hearts of the Balkan Girls, Who Go to War Like the Men; But Hard Work on Mountain Sides Make Feminine Beauty Die Early; Their Life as a Prominent English Woman Writes of Them.

(Editor's Note—Miss Durham is the only woman war correspondent on the Balkan battlefields She is now nursing the wounded Balkan soldiers as a Red Cross assistant, and writing her war stories between times. Miss Durham lived in Cetinje, Montenegro, during most of the last 12 years, making frequent trips throughout Montenegro, Servia and Bulgaria.)

(By Miss Mary Edith Durham.)

Podgoritza, Oct. 23.—In this struggle to free the christians of Macedonia from the pitiless iron rule of the Moslem, the women of the Balkan states are playing an active and noble part.

Montenegrin women are scarcely less hardy and stalwart than the husbands, brothers and sons who hastened to join the colors. Many of them, living upon the swart mountainsides of the little kingdom are capable of great feats of endurance; indeed, I have met women who have walked 30 or 40 miles a day over mountain passes and through the bare and stony defiles to attend the bazaars at Cetinje, the capital, or the market of picturesque Cattaro, in the latter case having to climb home again four or five thousand feet up amid the environing hills along a path often little more than a goat track.

Their dress is picturesque and suited to rough wear. That of the better class women consists generally of a medium long skirt of grayish or yellowish loosely woven frieze, long jacket-like coat of bright blue or red, of a somewhat finer-made cloth, and when she is not bare-headed a picturesque, flat-shaped headdress with a piece of cloth or linen like a veil hanging down the back.

As is often the case where the men are fighters first and foremost, the field work as well as domestic work, is largely done by the women. As young girls, many of the Montenegrins are decidedly handsome, but because of the hardness of the lives they lead, the exposure to sun and wind, and the fact that they are an eastern race developing early, their good looks seldom continue after middle age.

I have often seen two women or two girls pulling the roughly made wooden plow, when oxen were not available. The sowing, cultivation and harvesting of the maize and other crops is largely if not entirely, left to the women. The Montenegrin women not only are accustomed to kiss the hand of their husbands, but of the guests who may have been received into their homes for rest or shelter.

TYPES OF BULGARIAN, SERVIAN AND MONTENEGRIN WOMEN AS PHOTOGRAPHED BY MISS DURHAM.

MARY EDITH DURHAM.

Bulgaria has been called the "Rose Garden of Europe," and from it comes the greater proportion of real attar of roses—the almost priceless perfume of the east. The people are less fiery and untamed than their Montenegrin allies, and the women are less finely formed and less handsome. They have Tartar blood in their veins and their features are flatter. Their complexions are inclined to swarthy sallowness, and the great majority are black-haired and black-eyed. They are more domesticated, as a whole, than their Montenegrin sisters, and their homes are less bare and poverty-stricken.

Occasionally, in the rose fields which stretch for hundreds of acres, one comes across a charmingly graceful and pretty young girl, where perhaps intermarriage has had the result of obliterating still further the ancient Tartar facial characteristics.

The peasants dress largely in sheepskins, and form very picturesque figures as they come down the mountain paths with their long-shaped, heavily-laden wagons of very primitive construction, little more than four roughly made wheels, a pole to which the oxen can be attached, and rough boards for sides.

The women wear sandals, an embroidered petticoat or underskirt of rough flannel-like material, and an often elaborately embroidered jacket of many colors reaching to their knees. On their heads they wear turbans bound round in folds. These are usually white, and each has attached to it two long broad tails, which hang down the back past the waist line. Often the younger women go bareheaded, decorating their glossy, though somewhat coarse, black hair with strings of small copper or silver coins.

Most of the houses in the villages are of a single story. The kitchen is generally also the living room, and pigs, fowls and ducks, goats and other domestic animals run in and out as much at home as the owners. The father and mother sometimes possess a bedstead. The children, even when grown up, have to be content with mats spread upon the floor, of hardened mud. The Bulgarian housewife is a good one. Tidiness is held in high esteem.

Women of the higher class in the larger towns are often accomplished, and have an intelligence concerning national affairs which sometimes surprises the visitor. They are good nurses in sickness, and are volunteering in large numbers for the front for Red Cross service.

The Servian race is a fine, stalwart one, and the women are gifted with many of the physical characteristics of their mankind. They are also extremely hospitable, energetic and thrifty. But save in the larger towns and villages the houses are mostly mud hovels.

The Servian farmer, however, is not so poor as he looks or pretends to be. He could in most cases undoubtedly afford a more commodious and comfortable house. But centuries of oppression from the Turk, constant exactions and frequent ill-treatment have made him cautious of exhibiting prosperity.

The land is generally tilled by the family and owned by the farmer, the women doing their share of the rough work. Their dress is picturesque—a mixture of oriental and European styles. Not a few women, however, in the southern district wear what is but a slight modification of Turkish dress, with wide trousers, a bolero-like bodice, and sometimes an overdress or a shawl of bright colors. Numbers of Servian girls dressed as men are joining the army in the field.

Some of the Servian women are really beautiful. They are domesticated, good housewives and cooks. They are also very religious, and the various feasts of the church are strictly observed. Every family in Servia, too, has a patron saint, the care of whom is given to their sons, the daughters being chiefly concerned with the care of the saints of their future husbands.

DR. HARDMAN, Specialist

I Cure Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases

Reduced Fees Until December 1st

Experiment may mean DEATH. Then it is too late. If HEALTH—LIFE—HAPPINESS mean anything to you, you cannot afford to put off getting well. There is not a moment that you can afford to lose.

Whether or not you can afford to rent a cheaper house, buy a cheaper piece of property or a cheap suit of clothes remains with your own judgment, but YOU KNOW and everybody else knows that no one can afford to take any chance with cheap treatment where health and happiness are at stake. Inexperience and cheap, unscientific methods too often lead to the grave or, what is even worse, to permanent physical disability, which can only be cured by DEATH. Does it seem startling? Yet you know it to be a fact. Would you have a blacksmith try to fix your watch? Would you risk your life behind a locomotive that was run by a novice and who had no practical training? I think not. Would you even allow your wife or children to ride in a carriage drawn by unbroken or untrained horses? Certainly not. But do you think it more absurd than to trust your life and health to the inexperience of untrained doctors?

Think, and you will readily see the similarity of the situations.

The body (the storehouse of the soul) was loaned to us by AN ALLWISE CREATOR, and it is due to HIM that we take a proper care of it—and if harm should come to it in the way of disease, it is our duty to see that every possible means be utilized to fit it for the use that HE has intended.

Do you not think that it is time that you started on the road to health?

Do you not think that it is the part of wisdom to start with the best, instead of experiments with incompetent doctors, those who have made no special study of these chronic and deep-seated diseases? In other words, do you want to begin with a failure?

It costs nothing to be sociable. Come let me prove the advantages of my modern methods.

Every man that does less than he should do at his desk, in the shop or on the farm is weak in some way. I have found that the man who cannot accomplish all that he hopes or expects to is often the silent sufferer from some hidden Chronic or Pelvic disease that is slowly but surely undermining his health, usually affecting one or more of the important nerve centers of the body, and as surely unfitting him for competing with his fellow-men who are strong and healthy.

These neglected or unknown conditions are usually diseases of the pelvic organs, which, reflexly act on the organs of digestion, of elimination and the nervous system, which in turn has its influence on the brain. I have made a study of the nervous system and have perfected methods that will CURE Pelvic Diseases. I will give you a searching and thorough examination and explain to you the true nature of your trouble.

Hundreds of people in and about Fort Wayne who have taken advantage of my treatment are now satisfied and are enjoying the blessings of health. Many of these I have cured after they had vainly sought relief at the famous health resorts and spent much hard-earned cash in their efforts to get well.

Every day competition is getting more keen and the natural and inevitable result is that the weak must fall behind and watch those who are strong and healthy forge to the front.

I have spent years in the study and treatment of Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases and have perfected methods which will not only positively and permanently cure these chronic and deep-seated diseases, but will restore to a normal and healthy condition the broken-down and devitalized organs.

Think it over and consider if you can afford as a matter of business to neglect yourself and risk FAILURE because you are handicapped by disease.

Many a man has been forced to abandon a successful career because of some PELVIC or Chronic disease, which has insidiously wrecked his nervous system and unfitted him for performing the duties which he otherwise would have been able to perform.

It makes no difference how long you have been afflicted, if I accept your case I will positively cure you.

I have made it an invariable rule to accept no cases for treatment that I cannot cure. While this, of course, compels me to refuse to treat quite a good many cases which come to me, it has established a confidence in the public that when I accept a case for treatment I will accomplish a cure. This is the reason my business has grown to such remarkable proportions; that I have, beyond question, the largest business of my kind in the state, and hundreds of satisfied patients whom I have cured are ample evidence of my ability to successfully treat these chronic and deep-seated diseases in which the ordinary methods have failed. I HAVE NO TIME TO WASTE ON INCURABLE CASES.

BLOOD POISON—Only the most advanced methods are used by me in the treatment of Blood Poison and kindred diseases.

I use serums and vegetable drugs, and by their use I am able to rid the body of the poisons in about half the time necessary by the old methods. Besides Mercury and mineral poisons often ruin a man and leave him in a decidedly worse condition than before he began the treatment.

ECZEMA and other skin diseases are quickly and permanently cured.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and nearly all nervous diseases are the direct result of Chronic or imperfectly treated PELVIC DISEASES, such as VARICOCELE, PILES, FISTULA, STRICTURE, etc. I not only remove the cause, but many years of experience in the treatment of nervous diseases enable me by special methods to revitalize the entire nervous system and to restore to perfect health nearly all sufferers from NERVOUS BREAKDOWN AND VITAL WEAKNESS.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT—This may result from a number of causes. The constant jarring and vibration of trains and trolley cars are a very potent cause. Bicycle riding and the use of riding implements on the farm are factors in producing this disease In fact, the causes are so common that fully 75 per cent. of all adults are afflicted to a greater or less extent by this disease. The disease is so little understood, and as one of the principal symptoms is a pain in the back, it is usually called kidney trouble, and treated with local applications or sedatives, which can do no possible good whatever. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure about 90 per cent. of all cases.

VARICOCELE—I cure Varicocele in a few days' or weeks' time without the use of the knife.

STRICTURE—I readily remove stricture by my solvent method without the use of instruments.

PILES, FISTULA, ETC., cured without detention from business and without the use of the knife.

RUPTURES—I cure ruptures in a few treatments without the use of the knife and without pain or detention from business.

The wonderful growth of my business and the unprecedented success I have had in treating those chronic and deep seated diseases is due to a number of causes.

Clean advertising and clean business methods naturally bring to me an intelligent and self-respecting class of people.

I have always made it a rule never to put into my advertising anything that might be deemed vulgar or offensive by the most critical.

I have made it a point never to accept any case for treatment that I thought incurable.

I always give every one a thorough and systematic examination and endeavor to find the exact condition before I had begun treatment. I then treat the disease instead of the symptoms.

I treat only a few diseases and endeavor to thoroughly understand every one of them, instead of attempting to treat several hundred, which naturally would make it impossible to give more than a superficial study of each one.

Is it any wonder, then, why I have been so phenominally successful?

As to my responsibility, ask the banks or look me up in the commercial agencies.

All I ask is a fair chance and I will give you the cure you have paid others for.

DISGUISED THEY ROB HEN ROOST

Farmers Capture Man, His Wife and Visiting Widow

AFTER A BIG NIGHT

New ork, Nov. 5.—Dressed as men and wearing light slouch hats, two women were arrested on the outskirts of Oak Ridge, N. J., near Paterson.

For the last three months depredations have been made on hen roosts in the vicinity of Oak Ridge, and the farmers recently called a grange meeting. Constables Keifer and Hamil were detailed to keep a nightly vigil.

About 2 a. m. the constables saw a dweller in the neighborhood named Robert Coughlan hitch up his horse and wagon. He drove to the front of his house, where two others jumped in. The officers decided to notify the farmers of the vicinity. The farmers, armed with shotguns, awaited the return of the wagon, and just before sunrise their waiting was rewarded.

Kiefer and Hamil stepped to the roadway and informed the occupants of the wagon that they were under arrest. Coughlin started to whip his horse and Keifer grabbed the arm of one of the trio. To his amazement a voice cried: "Don't hurt me. I am a woman." The prisoners were taken to Hamil's home, where it was discovered that the two persons with Coughlan, disguised as men, were his wife and a widow named Jennie Kelley.

In the wagon were three bags containing chickens, some alive and others dead. The prisoners were taken to Paterson and held in $3,000 bail.

Coughlan and his wife arrived at Oak Ridge several months ago. They passed as theatrical people. They lost no time in making acquaintances, and soon learned the inns and outs of the countryside. Mrs. Kelley was the visitor. They are believed to be chicken thieves who have operated in other parts of the country.

DONS SAILOR RIG TO FIND A THIEF

Woman Said She Traveled All Over World in Navy.

BUT IS ARRESTED

New York, Nov. 5.—A person not more than 4 feet 6 inches tall, wearing a sailor suit, came down Third avenue followed by a crowd. From under the jauntily worn cap, on which was printed "H. M. S. Terrible," peeped gray curls.

Detectives Regan and Ditsch of the East Fifty-first street station fell in step with the person in the sailor suit.

"Where are you going in those togs?" asked Regan.

"I'm going to the station house to see Detective Regan," was the reply in a woman's voice. "I'm Mrs. Florence Green, of 320 East Fifty-ninth street. I was robbed the other night and reported it to Regan, but he hasn't helped me any. I'm going down to see if I can't assist him in these clothes."

"I'm Regan," said that man, and he took her to the police station, where he charged her with disorderly conduct. She said that twelve years ago, as Florence L. Story, she was one of the best cornet players in America.

"I'm now married to Jack Green," she continued, "and I like him better than either of my two other husbands. When my second husband was on the old war ship Philadelphia, off the Florida coast, I wanted to be with him. So I bought these clothes and enlisted in the ship's band. Not a person on board, except my husband, ever suspected I was a girl. I went to many parts of the world on the Philadelphia, and if you don't believe it, look at these," and she showed tattooing on her arms. There were a dagger and the word "Revenge," a spread eagle, a dove and "F. L. S."

"These initials stand for my name," she continued. "My husband is in Connecticut now, and as I have little to do I want to help you police find the thief that robbed my house. In these sailor clothes I helped the police of Alaska and Pennsylvania and I can be of big assistance to you."

She was taken to the night court.

and Russia particularly has warned Turkey that conditions could only become worse should further disaster occur at Tchatalja.

Austria-Hungary, which after all is the most directly interested of the great powers, being the nearest neighbor to the Balkan states, will, it is believed, not sit quietly by and see the Balkan league establish itself across her path to the Aegean sea, in which direction her trade is expanding, while at the same time the Servians spread to the Adriatic sea. The Austrian government points out that the Albanians are as much a nation as any of the allies and that Albania should be reserved for the Albanians.

First Sign of Dissension.

The first sign of dissension among the Balkan allies themselves comes in a dispatch from Belgrade, in which it is said the Servians are beginning to declare that the "autonomous Albania" which was agreed upon before the war started has now faded away.

Instead of the twenty mile stretch of the Adriatic coast hitherto claimed by Servia, the same dispatch says now Servia wants sixty miles and that in return Montenefro is to get more than her allotted third share of the district of Novizpar. The correspondent remarks significantly:

"The emperor of Russia will be taken as aribtrator between Servia and Bulgaria in regard to those conquests, which were not foreseen in the original agreement between the allies."

Bulgarians on the Move.

The Bulgarian troops are probably again on the move. The Bulgarian army near Tchorlu is being reinforced with troops taken from the investing forces around Adrianople, whose places in turn have been taken by Servians. A second Bulgarian army, commanded by General Kuntcheff, is marching along the coast of the sea of Mormosa to effect a junction with the Bulgarian army commanded by Gen. Dimitrieff at Tchataja. The Bulgarians must have worked hard as they have thousands of wounded Turks and Bulgarians to care for and have been forced to burn or bury a large number of killed. It is officially stated in a dispatch from Belgrade that the Servians having annihilated the Turkish army in Macedonia, have been ordered to assist the Bulgarians, Greeks and Montenegrins. A large force of Servians has already passed through Sofia on the way to Adrianople, the bombardment of which continues without abatement.

Nothing Heard From Turks.

Nothing has been heard today of the position of the Turks at Tchatalja, but it is believed part of the army managed to get behind the positions there. They are, however, in bad condition, besides the host of wounded, many men dropped out of the ranks exhausted from want of food, and most of these threw away their rifles and accourtrements. They have had two days in which to rally and reform, while the Bulgarian advance probably will be slower than heretofore, as the roads are in a terrible condition from the heavy rains and this will cause difficulty in bringing up artillery.

It is reported today that the Greeks made a premature attack on Saloniki and were repulsed, but this lacks confirmation. A combined attack on that city by Greeks, Servians and Bulgarians is expected shortly. Another report, which is both unlikely and unconfirmed, comes from Vienna to the effect that Great Britain has warned Bulgaria against attempting to enter Constantinople. Great Britain's chief interest in that city at present is to prevent massacres.

The British Attitude.

The British attitude in the Balkan situation was explained today in the house of commons by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, who was loudly cheered when, in reply to a question he said:

"No one in view of the result of the war up to date, will be disposed to dispute the rights of the Balkan states to formulate the terms on which they are prepared to conclude peace.

"Do not think that the great powers are more slow than other people to adjust their known views to the march of events. The powers are exchanging views in regard to the position in the near east, but it must be a very delicate matter for them to interfere between two powers unless they do so at the request of both."

Asked whether Great Britain could not follow the precedent of Mr. Roosevelt in the Russo-Japanese war, Sir Edward Grey did not reply.

Sir Edward Grey referring again to the war, said nothing untoward had yet happened at Constantinople. The situation there remained as it was yesterday. The city being in a state of apprehension as to what might happen.

Sir Edward denied that Great Britain had given a warning of any kind to Bulgaria. The movements of British ships and their intentions were precisely similar to those of the other powers, namely to protect lives. The steps had been taken as a result of communications which had passed between the powers.

CANNOT BE DECISIVE.

How Austria-Hungary Views Present Military Situation.

Vienna, Nov. 5.—The attitude of the Austro-Hungarian government in regard to the proposal of Premier Poincaire for the adjustment of the Balkan situation is clearly stated today in the Neue Freie Presse, which says:

"The present military situation in the Balkans cannot be decisive for the solution of the whole eastern question. Premier Poincaire gives to the Balkan states more than they themselves have demanded.

"The proposal, which is a most radical expression of pan-Slavist tendency, is so one-sided that it can hardly find the approval of all the powers and especially of Austria-Hungary, the less so as nothing is said regarding the future of Albania. This is a question which is of the greatest importance both to Austria-Hungary and Italy."

The anxiety of Austria-Hungary that Servia shall not occupy Albania, and thus secure that outlet on the Adriatic sea which the Servians are so desirous of probably will provide a great bone of contention.

Serria has been warned already from Vienna that the Servians have gone far enough to the west. This warning is repeated today by the semi-official Fremdenblatt. After praising the Servian soldiers for their humanity the newspaper says:

"The Servians having approached the frontier of a territory occupied without exception by Albanians, it is hoped and expected now that Servia will avoid the raising of those difficulties which the historic character of the Albanians prove insurmountable. The most elementary justice demands that the principle of 'the Balkans for the Balkans people' shall also be to the advantage of the Albaniana."

Prince Ghirka, the president of the Albania national commission, it is said, is to be proclaimed king of Albania.

RUSHING TROOPS TO FRONT.

Bulgaria Continues to Press Advantage Over the Turks.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 5.—Reinforcements continue to proceed to the front from the Bulgarian capital in considerable numbers. Some Severan troops passed through Sofia for Adrianople and today eight battalions of volunteers, including Macedonians and Russians, entrained for the front.

It is reported that fighting still continues in the neighborhood of Seria and Tchorlu.

People are being kept in entire ignorance of the happenings around Adrianople and at Tchorlu, where the Turkish and Bulgarian armies are fighting. Nothing has been published here for the past three days.

An important ministerial conference was held this morning, the results of which have not been made public.

The hospitals of Sofia, Philippopolis and other centers are crowded with wounded men.

Thirty foreign war correspondents have announced that they are leaving the Bulgarian headquarters and returning to their respective countries.

SILENT VOTE TO DECIDE.

Mulvane Says It Holds Key to General Result.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—"The silent vote will decide the situation," said David Mulvane, western republican campaign director, today. "We have no reports, of course, to indicate definitely how the election will go, but our communications from the western territory show that a big vote will be polled. We have no reports of attempted fraud anywhere."

Democratic headquarters was as silent as a tomb, all the officials having gone home to vote.

LYSHER BACK TO PRISON.

Convicted in Allen County and Violated His Parole.

Michigan City, Ind., Nov. 5.—Charles Lysher, paroled, is in jail here, charged with violating his parole. He was sent up from Allen county in 1907 for horse stealing and was paroled to a farmer near this city in July, 1910. It is alleged he stole a horse from a hitching rack in the city. He will be returned to prison to complete his unexpired term.

Lysher was convicted here in 1907 of the theft of a horse and spring wagon belonging to Charles Street. He plead guilty to grand larceny under an affidavit filed by Mayor Jesse Grice, who was then sheriff.

DON'T WANT THE CONTRACT.

Dealers Can Not Get Mine Owners to Guarantee Delivery of Coal.

There were no bids yesterday for the contract to furnish 7,000 tons of coal for the municipal lighting plant for the first six months of next year and dealers who were asked about it say they did not bid because of the fact that none of the mine owners will guarantee the delivery. The car shortage is so serious that the owners are afraid to take any chances.

MEN AND WOMEN CAN SAVE THEIR HAIR WITH HERPICIDE

No woman should have poor, thin, scraggy hair and no man need become bald. Poor hair and final baldness are due to the dandruff germ.

Newbro's Herpicide will destroy this little germ and stop the hair from falling. Further evidence of this, is found in a letter from Mrs. F. Neilsen, of Tomah, Wis. She says: "I fought the worst kind of dandruff for nine years. I have been using Herpicide now one week, and my scalp is healthy, the dandruff has gone and the itching has stopped. It is the best remedy for scalp disease I ever saw, and I have seen many."

Don't subject yourself to disappointment and expense by accepting something claimed to be "just as good" as Newbro's Herpicide. These off brands may possibly be good, but why take chances? The genuine and original dandruff germ destroyer can always be obtained. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Send 10c in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Applications at good barber shops.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded. Bradley Bros., Special Agents.—Adv.

To You In America

I Bring a Message of Hope and Good Cheer

WE who live down here in the West Indies have long known and loved "NUTROTONIQUE" for its health-giving qualities.

We do not take kindly to "medicine" and use but little so-called "drugs." That is why we depend so much upon "NUTROTONIQUE"—for it is a real food for the blood and nerves.

It contains, in an absolutely tasteless form, all the active principles of cod liver oil, together with hypophosphites, iron, quinine, manganese and calcium, and is undoubtedly the most marvelous builder and strengthener for thin blood and weak nerves, known in any country.

"NUTROTONIQUE" is now sold in the United States for the first time and if you suffer from nervous debility, or if you are weak or run down, your blood thin, or if you need a tonic or alterative, you should at least try one bottle. It is most delightful in both taste and immediate effect. The price is only one dollar for a large bottle.

Sold by People's Drug Co., John C. Wenzler, Dreier Drug Co., D. & N. Pharmacy.

Platform in Collapse at Roosevelt Meeting in Minneola.

HE COMES UP SMILING

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 5.—With addresses to two large audiences, one at Mineola in the afternoon, the other later at this place, Theodore Roosevelt closed his campaign here last night. Interest in the Mineola meeting was heightened when the platform erected in a tent collapsed five minutes after Mr. Roosevelt's arrival, causing no injury, but great alarm to the eighty men and women seated thereon.

Colonel Roosevelt arrived from Sagamore Hill at 4 o'clock, and was received with a great display of enthusiasm by 1,500 persons. He waved his hand in response, and seated himself beside J. B. Coles Tappan, the chairman of the meeting. Others on the platform who spoke included Bburke Cockran, Walter Hoff Seely, of San Francisco; George Wallace, Fred M. Chase, of Alaska; Miss Alice Carpenter and others.

Platform Gives Way.

Several of these were talking to Mr. Roosevelt when the supports of the platform suddenly gave way with a crash. Instantly the cheering ceased and scores of women screamed as the platform mushroomed toward the center, causing all on the stage to slide toward the danger point. Fortunately the drop was less than three feet, and in the scramble that followed little damage was done.

Colonel Roosevelt was doused with water from a pitcher on the table before him and he almost fell from his chair backward. He regained his equilibrium immediately, however, and stepped to the front of the platform to reassure the crowd. This was the signal for a resumption of applause and it was fully three minutes before silence was restored.

"I can assure you," he said in opening, "that whatever this platform has done, the progressive platform will not give way."

He interrupted his speech to assist four women to seats in an aisle before him and on being informed that no one had been injured in the slightest he reviewed the purposes and aims of the progressive movement. The colonel paid his respects to the "venerable well-meaning" judiciary, told several stories which provoked laughter; repeated his old saying that while the war with Spain "wasn't much of a war, yet it was the best there was at the time," and closed with a prediction of success for the progressive movement, if not today, then in four years from now.

Mrs. Peter Holan, 1150 Buckeye Rd., Cleveland, O., says: "Yes, indeed I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My little boy had a bad case of whooping cough, some times he was blue in the face. I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and it had a remarkable effect and cured him in a short time." Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and do not accept any substitute. Children like it, grown folks are quickly helped by it, and it contains no opiates. Dreier Drug Co.—Adv.

LADS STRING UP THEIR BOY CHUM

Wild West Motion Pictures Lead to Mock Lynching at Joliet.

CRIPPLED FOR LIFE

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Moving pictures inspired ten boys to "lynch" Glenn Brown, their 9-year-old playmate, in Joliet yesterday. So serious are his injuries that he may be crippled for life.

It was a "wild west" picture, absurd to the practical mind in its unrealities, that gave the boys their ideas.

They saw in the flickering pictures a score of "cowboys," their revolvers strapped on the wrong side, while they mounted their horses also from the wrong side and rode with the grace and skill of wooden Indians.

The boys did not notice these details. They saw only the rakishness and swaggering daredevilry. They applauded vociferously the "stringing up" of the actor-cowboy.

String Up Boy Chum.

"Let's play wild west," one 10-year-old enthusiast proposed after the show. The vote was unanimous.

Wooden revolvers were fashioned. Fathers' discarded hats took the place of sombrebros. Broomsticks served as prancing bronchos.

"Who'll we lynch?" one asked. Glenn Brown was selected. His dark hair and eyes led to his unwilling selection by them for the role of "villain."

They tied a clothes-line under his arms and threw the rope over a branch of a tree. Whooping madly, in true moving-picture-wild west fashion, they pulled him up until his feet were far from the ground.

Pleads in Vain.

The thin rope cut into his tender flesh. He struggled and implored his comrades to let him down. His pleas brought renewed whoops. Had not the "villain" in the moving pictures struggled and cried for mercy?

For half an hour they kept him there. Then they cut the rope and let his body fall to the ground. Their childish eyes did not see that he was unconscious. They seized the rope and dragged him for several minutes, leaving him on the ground to find his way home alone.

Physicians who examined him declared that he may be disabled permanently.

DEATH RECALLS OLD ROMANCE.

After Quarrel Brothers Lived as Hermits on River Island.

New London, Conn., Nov. 4.—A romance of nearly three-quarters of a century ago is recalled by the death in this city of Andrew Mason, who for the greater part of his ninety-two years had lived as a hermit on Mason's island, in the Mystic river. In early life Andrew and his brother John both loved and were rejected by the daughter of a neighbor. This caused enmity between the brothers and drove them to the life of hermits. They divided Mason's island, which they had inherited from their father, and there for more than fifty years each lived on his own portion without intercourse with the other.

FOUR BRIDES IN FAMILY.

Farmer's Gift and Hint to Sons Bring Desired Results.

Woodbury, N. J., Nov. 4.—Andes E. Budd, a farmer in West Deptford township, several months ago gave each of his four sons a building lot with the injunction that it was time they were getting married.

At that time none of them had thought of doing so, but the impression of the admonition must have gone deeply.

One by one the "boys" began looking around and soon three were married, and each started to build a house. This left Charles, the younger, all alone. So he married Miss Grace Whilden of Camden county and has the lumber on his lot for a pretty home.

WOULD START NEGRO TOWN.

Arkansas Educator Proposes Partial Solution of Race Problem.

Pine Bluffs, Ark., Nov. 4.—Isaac Fisher, a negro educator, who for nine years was principal of the branch normal, a branch of the state university, at Pine Bluffs, proposes a partial solution of the negro problem, in this section of the state at least, by the establishment of the first exclusively negro town in the state.

He is the representative of the Warner Land company, which has secured possession of 2,000 acres of fertile farming lands surrounding the site of the proposed new town of Warner, on the Cotton Belt, between Wabbaseka and Humphrey, in Jefferson county.

The town has been platted and the lots, together with the adjacent farming lands, are to be offered only to negro people. White citizenship will not be admitted.

CAMPAIGN COST $1,500.

Bull Moosers Say It All Went for Legitimate Expenses.

Colonel D. N. Foster, treasurer of the progressive committee in Allen county, declared that the party which he represents, closes its campaign with a clean slate. Mr. Foster Monday banked a wad of money to cover checks which had just been written to pay the remaining campaign bills.

"We have spent approximately $1,500," said Mr. Foster. "This was subscribed by progressive party voters of Allen county, and was all used to cover legitimate bills, not one cent having been devoted to 'slush.'"
